Irish Greet British Rule With Bomb

BELFAST (AP) — A giant explosion wrecked a main street in Belfast, killing a British army officer, and bombers tried to assassinate a Protestant leader in the Roman Catholic civil rights movement today as London formalized its takeover of Northern Ireland.

The British House of Commons voted 191 to 13 to endorse the peace plan of Prime Minister Edward Heath. The measure giving the British government complete control over the embattled province was passed by the House of Lords an hour later and then given approval by Queen Elizabeth II to become law.

As the violence flared in Northern Ireland, the British Defense Ministry announced it would send 600 more troops to the province to help restore order, bringing the number of soldiers in Ulster to 15,100.

The blasts in Belfast were the third and fourth to shake Northern Ireland within hours.

The explosion on Wellington Street, 100 yards from City Hall, went off in car and tore a huge section of the thoroughfare. It sent parts of the car soaring over four-story buildings into nearby streets and hurled the officer, a bomb disposal expert, against a wall. Maj. Bernard Calladene, 39, died in a hospital. He was the 292nd person killed in 32 months and the 56th British soldier to die in the Ulster troubles.

Police said the car was stolen in the Lower Falls area of Belfast, a stronghold of the Irish Republican Army, and blamed the IRA for the blast.

In Londonderry, guerrilla bombers tried to assassinate Ivan Cooper, a Protestant member of Northern Ireland's now-defunct parliament and a leading figure in the Roman Catholic civil rights movement.

Police said a bomb blew up Cooper's car outside his home minutes after he received a phone call telling him he was urgently needed at a hospital.

Earlier in the evening, a 150-pound gelignite charge exploded in a truck in downtown Belfast, demolishing the vehicle and blowing out windows for hundreds of yards, and three men bombed a Protestant-owned food store after warning employees and customers they had five minutes to clear out. No casualties were reported.

The army was preparing for the Easter weekend, traditionally a tense time for Catholic-Protestant relations in Northern Ireland. The Catholics are said to be planning several demonstrations, some to commemorate IRA dead. Barricades were going up around some Catholic areas where residents fear Protestant assaults. Military sources said gunmen behind the barricades have been firing random shots, apparently as warnings.

$24.6 Billion Clean Water Bill Approved

House And Senate Plan Conference Over Differences

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has given quick approval to a $24.6-billion clean-water bill designed to purify the nation's rivers, streams and lakes.

Following Wednesday's 378-14 vote, the chief sponsor, Rep. John Blatnik, D-Minn., said a House-Senate conference will go to work to hammer out a compromise after the Easter recess.

But major differences between the House version and the Senate bill passed last November are expected to delay agreement for weeks.

The House version calls for the federal government to spend $18.3 billion during the fiscal years 1973-75 to help communities finance construction of sewage-treatment works and sewage-collection systems.

The Senate bill authorizes total construction grants of only $14 billion. None of the Senate money is earmarked for sewage-collection systems.

The Senate also called for industries to utilize by 1981 the best available technology to treat wastes discharged into waterways. The House, by comparison, calls on the National Academy of Sciences to complete within two years a cost study to determine if the 1981 requirement would be economically disruptive.

If it is found economically feasible, Congress would set the 1981 deadline.

The Senate also gave industries until 1985 to eliminate discharges into waterways.

The House merely cited the 1985 no-discharge deadline as a national goal and not governmental policy.

Another significant difference is abolition of the 1899 Refuse Act permit system under the House measure. It would be replaced with a joint federal-state permit system under which industries would receive permits from the states operating under federal guidelines.

The Senate version does not eliminate the Refuse Act permit system, but simply adds an additional federal-state system.

Gabriel Heatter Dies At 82

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Gabriel Heatter, who kept wartime audiences turned to their radios with "there's good news tonight," died today at the age of 82 at the Miami Heart Institute following a five-year illness.

Heatter, whose deep baritone brought the London blitz and the Pacific jungle into American living rooms, died of pneumonia, said son-in-law Ralph Daniels.

The pioneer newscaster retired from his national nightly broadcasts on the Mutual network in 1961. His last broadcast, over a Miami radio station, was May 23, 1965.

Heatter suffered a stroke that partially paralyzed his right side five years ago.

The broadcaster called Winston Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt his friends, and when birthdays rolled around during his later years, often borrowed the British prime minister's birthday quote for his own: "In view of the alternatives, it feels pretty good."

The newscaster used to open every broadcast during the dark days of World War II with "Ah, yes, there's good news tonight," and the news of lost battles and death counts was always saved until later.

U.S. Gunship Downed; 14 Feared Dead

North Viets Escalate War

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces launched a series of coordinated assaults today on eight South Vietnamese bases in the northern quarter of the country, and one of the camps was evacuated by government troops.

In the air war, an enemy surface-to-air missile shot down one of the United States' biggest computerized gunships, the spearhead of the secret electronics war in Laos. All 14 crewmen are missing and feared dead.

Sources said it was too early to tell whether the attacks in the western mountains and foothills of Quang Tri Province, bordering the demilitarized zone and Laos, marked the start of a sustained North Vietnamese offensive.

Sharp fighting also was reported in the central highlands, and sources said all South Vietnamese troops had been placed on a heightened alert after intelligence reports that North Vietnamese troops were planning to launch a three-phased campaign there next month.

Previously predicted offensives in both the northern and central sectors of the country did not materialize earlier this year.

In the northern sector, five fire support bases guarding the DMZ were hit with rockets and mortar rounds shortly after 2 p.m. today.

Simultaneously, ground assaults were made against three other fire support bases guarding the western approaches to the provincial capital of Quang Tri City.

Field reports said that two companies of South Vietnamese marines, about 300 men, abandoned Fire Base Holcomb, some 20 miles west of Quang

Tri City, and withdrew to Fire Base Sarge, two miles to the north. A ground assault was also made against Sarge and Fire Base Nui Ba Ho, two miles north of Sarge.

There was no immediate word on casualties in the three ground attacks and shelling attacks against Fire Bases Alpha 2, Charlie 1, Charlie 2, Camp Carroll and Dong Ha, a district town with an adjoining military base.

Field reports said the North Vietnamese pushed eastward from Khe Sanh, where they had been reported building up for several weeks despite heavy bombing by U.S. B52s.

A search-and-rescue mission for the downed gunship in Laos proved unsuccessful. Fighter escort pilots said they saw no parachutes after the AC130 gunship was hit by one of three surface-to-air missiles fired at the flight during a predawn mission Wednesday.

It was the first AC130 reported downed by a surface-to-air missile. Two other AC130s were lost to anti-aircraft artillery fire, in May 1969 and April 1970.

Fireworks Plant Blast Fatal To 6

BRIDGEWATER, Mass. (AP) — Six persons were reported killed and 11 injured today when a chain-reaction series of explosions followed by fire ripped through the wooden buildings of a fireworks manufacturing company.

Bridgewater Deputy Fire Chief Arthur Joyce said six bodies were found in the rubble of the blasted buildings at the Interstate Pyrotechnics Corp. plant.

State Police said one building, a powder magazine, was left standing of six to 10 buildings at the site.

Police said they believed 16 to 20 persons were at work in the factory, but reports of the number of employees ranged from 10 to 50.

The injured were taken to hospitals in the area.

Robert White of Abington, an employee who was on his morning coffee break at the time of the first blast, said nine persons were working in one of the buildings and 1 to 5 other employees were at other structures on the 3 to 4-acre site.

Two women employees were found 50 feet from the building in which they were working.

A police helicopter moved over the explosion site. The fire was so intense that it drove rescuers back.

Only one of seven or eight buildings on the site—a storage shack—was still standing, witnesses said.

Tom Roulstone, a newsman for radio station WOKW in Brockton, said, "The buildings were leveled by the explosions... Windows have been blown out of buildings in the area."

"Firefighters cannot get close enough because there are still explosions almost every minute," Roulstone said, reporting about 50 minutes after the first blast.

He quoted officials as saying the explosions started in one of the buildings and apparently ripped through the remainder of them like falling dominoes. A fire broke out almost immediately, he said.

Six of the injured from the explosion were taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Middleboro and two were taken to Brockton Hospital.

There was no immediate word on their condition.

Muskie Not Bragging About 58th Birthday

OREGON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie says he's not bragging about his birthday. "When you get to be my age, it's nothing to cheer about," Muskie, 58, said at a birthday party thrown by his aides Tuesday.

The Senator from Maine was here campaigning for Wisconsin's April 4 Democratic presidential primary. He said he had forgotten about the birthday until his aides mentioned it.

Meat Prices To Decline Nation's Marketers Claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heads of the nation's largest food chains, emerging from a two-hour meeting with top government officials, say the price of meat will be coming down in the next few weeks.

The executives met Wednesday with Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, and members of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers Wednesday. Afterwards, they told newsmen that meat prices will be falling because of market forces rather than government action.

Connally agreed. "We think that over the next 140 days you will see a decline in meat prices," he said.

The secretary also persuaded the 12 food chains to make weekly reports on meat prices to government. Connally said the reports will be made public.

William Mitchell, president of Safeway Stores and spokesman for the food chains, told reporters that "the secretary is indeed a very persuasive person."

But he said that the decline in food prices can be expected because carcass beef prices are dropping and not because Connally called the chains in for private talks. In the next few weeks, Mitchell said, meat prices should go down to the level that prevailed during the price freeze last year.

He said that "meat prices are going down no matter what is said because of competition."

Meanwhile, Rep. Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, told a Boston audience that, unless the present inflationary trend is slowed, he will be "just about ready to say we must go back to some sort of price freeze across the board."

Mills, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said that time might be reached "in just a few more weeks, the way things are going."

If the freeze on wages, rents and prices is resumed, Mills said, he would want it extended to profits and interest.

Connally left open the possibility that meat packers may be brought in to discuss the wholesale price of meat.

Board Eyes Teacher Pay

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The federal Pay Board in Washington took up the question of higher minimum salaries for Ohio teachers today, state school Supt. Martin W. Essex said.

The state has asked permission to raise the state minimum salary schedule for teachers from $5,200 annually to $5,800, effective last Jan. 1, and again to $6,400 on July 1.

Essex said the state Department of Education had supplied the board with pay figures in 600 school districts for the past three years.

He said the department "had received many compliments from the board staff on the completeness of our compilations."

Essex said he remained optimistic the board would rule favorably on the request, but he said a decision might not come until next week.

Pecan Snappers Found Filthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has announced the recall of nearly 1,000 pounds of Country Inn Pecan Snappers candy manufactured by Baldi Candy Co. and distributed in eight states by Sears Roebuck & Co. of Chicago.

The FDA said the candy was contaminated with insect fragments, rodent hairs and wood fragments. Inspection of Baldi's Chicago plant also disclosed live insects and wood in the pecans, the agency said.

The recall affects 80 cases of candy distributed by Sears in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Snowstorm Buries Part Of Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although the huge snowstorm that buried parts of the Midwest slipped quietly into Canada today, falling temperatures behind the storm left much of its snow still covering the ground.

Nine inches of snow blanketed Madison, Wis.; 7 inches whitened Rockford, Ill., and 5 to 6 inches was the rule in the Chicago area as a result of the Wednesday storm.

Warmer air southeast of the storm center brought rain and showers from the lower Great Lakes to the Middle Atlantic States.

In the South, a band of thunderstorms cut across central Florida, spawning a tornado 12 miles west of Orlando. There were no damage reports.

Dry and cool weather was the general rule west of the Mississippi. Frost and freeze warnings were out as far south as Oklahoma and extreme southern Missouri.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Want to pay $69,500 a month to have one of the world's fastest trains running half-speed, nearly empty, through the home district of a powerful congressman?

You're doing it.

Does it seem logical to test a train designed to whisk passengers between metropolitan centers at 170 m.p.h. by pushing it over mountains at 15 m.p.h.?

Or to spend another $40,000 advertising the scenic beauties of the route, which the train crosses at night?

Amtrak and the Department of Transportation think so, and so does Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee which passes on all bills authorizing funds for Amtrak and the Transportation Department.

And that's why one of the only two Turbo Trains in the United States labored over the West Virginia mountains for eight hours one recent night to deposit three passengers in Parkersburg, W.Va.

It was a typical run.

The Turbo Train, capacity 144, pulled out of Washington, D.C., half full at 5:45 p.m., dropping passengers at four commuter stations along the way. By the time it reached the first West Virginia stop, Martinsburg, at 7:04 p.m., only a dozen riders remained.

The next day, leaving Parkersburg at 4 a.m., four passengers boarded. The Turbo Train brought 26 riders into Washington just before noon.

Until last fall this Turbo was one of two speeding full passenger loads between Boston and New York in less than four hours.

The rail passenger office of the New England Governors'

Conference wanted to expand the service from nine round trips a week to four round trips daily, making the Turbos a natural extension of the Metroliner between Washington and New York.

Then Amtrak appeared before Staggers' committee to request $170 million. And, the Department of Transportation showed up to ask the committee for $315 million plus an extension of its program to develop high speed ground transportation.

On Feb. 7 the Turbo Train inaugurated service to West Virginia, including Staggers' hometown of Keyser, population 6,586.

Fifteen days later Staggers' committee reported favorably on the Amtrak request; two days after that it approved the Department of Transportation bill.

Cash Taken From City Gas Station

City police Sgt. Larry Pontius is investigating the early morning robbery of an undetermined amount of cash from the Main and Western St. service station of Clyde Kohn.

According to preliminary reports, thieves used a key to gain access to the building.

They took another set of keys from a drawer in the station's front office to gain access to another room that was caged.

Once in the room, they apparently opened two metal cash boxes and took all bills, leaving behind about $25 in assorted coins.

TRAFFIC lights were temporarily disabled about 10 a.m. Thursday at Pickaway and Main Sts., Pickaway and Franklin Sts., Pickaway and Mound Sts., and Court and Franklin Sts., as sandblasters dislodged a power line while beautifying the city building.

A city worker had the units back in operation after several minutes delay.

Irish Greet British Rule With Bomb

BELFAST (AP) — A giant explosion wrecked a main street in Belfast, killing a British army officer, and bombers tried to assassinate a Protestant leader in the Roman Catholic civil rights movement today as London formalized its takeover of Northern Ireland.

The British House of Commons voted 191 to 13 to endorse the peace plan of Prime Minister Edward Heath. The measure giving the British government complete control over the embattled province was passed by the House of Lords an hour later and then given approval by Queen Elizabeth II to become law.

As the violence flared in Northern Ireland, the British Defense Ministry announced it would send 600 more troops to the province to help restore order, bringing the number of soldiers in Ulster to 15,100.

It sent parts of the car soaring over four-story buildings into nearby streets and hurled the officer, a bomb disposal expert, against a wall. Maj. Bernard Calladene, 39, died in a hospital. He was the 292nd person killed in 32 months and the 56th British soldier to die in the Ulster troubles.

Police said the car was stolen in the Lower Falls area of Belfast, a stronghold of the Irish Republican Army, and blamed the IRA for the blast.

In Londonderry, guerrilla bombers tried to assassinate Ivan Cooper, a Protestant member of Northern Ireland's now-defunct parliament and a leading figure in the Roman Catholic civil rights movement.

Police said a bomb blew up Cooper's car outside his home minutes after he received a phone call telling him he was urgently needed at a hospital.

Earlier in the evening, a 150-pound gelignite charge exploded in a truck in downtown Belfast, demolishing the vehicle and blowing out windows for hundreds of yards, and three men bombed a Protestant-owned food store after warning employees and customers they had five minutes to clear out. No casualties were reported.

The army was preparing for the Easter weekend, traditionally a tense time for Catholic-Protestant relations in Northern Ireland. The Catholics are said to be planning several demonstrations, some to commemorate IRA dead. Barricades were going up around some Catholic areas where residents fear Protestant assaults. Military sources said gunmen behind the barricades have been firing random shots, apparently as warnings.

$24.6 Billion Clean Water Bill Approved

House And Senate Plan Conference Over Differences

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has given quick approval to a $24.6-billion clean-water bill designed to purify the nation's rivers, streams and lakes.

Following Wednesday's 378-14 vote, the chief sponsor, Rep. John Blatnik, D-Minn., said a House-Senate conference will go to work to hammer out a compromise after the Easter recess.

The Senate also gave industries until 1985 to eliminate discharges into waterways.

The House merely cited the 1985 no-discharge deadline as a national goal and not governmental policy.

Another significant difference is abolition of the 1899 Refuse Act permit system under the House measure. It would be replaced with a joint federal-state permit system under which industries would receive permits from the states operating under federal guidelines.

The Senate version does not eliminate the Refuse Act permit system, but simply adds an additional federal-state system.

Meat Prices To Decline Nation's Marketers Claim

Snowstorm Buries Part Of Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although the huge snowstorm that buried parts of the Midwest slipped quietly into Canada today, falling temperatures behind the storm left much of its snow still covering the ground.

Nine inches of snow blanketed Madison, Wis.; 7 inches whitened Rockford, Ill., and 5 to 6 inches was the rule in the Chicago area as a result of the Wednesday storm.

Warmer air southeast of the storm center brought rain and showers from the lower Great Lakes to the Middle Atlantic States.

In the South, a band of thunderstorms cut across central Florida, spawning a tornado 12 miles west of Orlando. There were no damage reports.

Dry and cool weather was the general rule west of the Mississippi. Frost and freeze warnings were out as far south as Oklahoma and extreme southern Missouri.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Want to pay $69,500 a month to have one of the world's fastest trains running half-speed, nearly empty, through the home district of a powerful congressman?

You're doing it. Does it seem logical to test a train designed to whisk passengers between metropolitan centers at 170 m.p.h. by pushing it over mountains at 15 m.p.h.?

Or to spend another $40,000 advertising the scenic beauties of the route, which the train crosses at night?

Amtrak and the Department of Transportation think so, and so does Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee which passes on all bills authorizing funds for Amtrak and the Transportation Department.

And that's why one of the only two Turbo Trains in the United States labored over the West Virginia mountains for eight hours one recent night to deposit three passengers in Parkersburg, W.Va.

It was a typical run. The Turbo Train, capacity 144, pulled out of Washington, D.C., half full at 5:45 p.m., dropping passengers at four commuter stations along the way. By the time it reached the first West Virginia stop, Martinsburg, at 7:04 p.m., only a dozen riders remained.

The next day, leaving Parkersburg at 4 a.m., four passengers boarded. The Turbo Train brought 26 riders into Washington just before noon.

Until last fall this Turbo was one of two speeding full passenger loads between Boston and New York in less than four hours.

The rail passenger office of the New England Governors'

Conference wanted to expand the service from nine round trips a week to four round trips daily, making the Turbos a natural extension of the Metroliner between Washington and New York.

Then Amtrak appeared before Staggers' committee to request $170 million. And, the Department of Transportation showed up to ask the committee for $315 million plus an extension of its program to develop high speed ground transportation.

On Feb. 7 the Turbo Train inaugurated service to West Virginia, including Staggers' hometown of Keyser, population 6,586.

Fifteen days later Staggers' committee reported favorably on the Amtrak request; two days after that it approved the Department of Transportation bill.

Cash Taken From City Gas Station

City police Sgt. Larry Pontius is investigating the early morning robbery of an undetermined amount of cash from the Main and Western St. service station of Clyde Kohn.

According to preliminary reports, thieves used a key to gain access to the building.

They took another set of keys from a drawer in the station's front office to gain access to another room that was caged.

Once in the room, they apparently opened two metal cash boxes and took all bills, leaving behind about $25 in assorted coins.

A city worker had the units back in operation after several minutes delay.

Cleveland Man Faces Bank Robbery Charge

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — David Hampton, 21, of Cleveland was charged Wednesday with the $1,400 robbery of a National City Bank branch on the city's East Side.

Police said Hampton was arrested within a minute of Tuesday's bank robbery and a .32-caliber gun and $1,400 cash believed taken in the robbery were confiscated.

the controversial strip mine measure.

The strip mine bill came out of the closed-door Senate Rules Committee over the objections of Sen. Oakley Collins, R-18 Ironton, a strip mine operator.

Collins said the bill would force many small strip mine operators out of business, possibly his own Collins Minims Co. Although Collins voted to report the bill out of the committee, he told the Associated Press later he objected mainly because of an emergency clause that would make it effective upon the signature of the governor.

"It's a terrible thing to have an emergency clause on this," Collins said. "If they had left that off it would have given the small operators time to work out some modifications."

Even if the Senate approves

the bill, it must still go back to the House for approval of Senate amendments.

The legislature is scheduled to meet next week — the House, Tuesday through Thursday; and the Senate, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Tentative plans call for the lawmakers to return May 3 for the remainder of the month, then wrap up biennium activities, unless a special session is called.

Gov. John J. Gilligan, in House floor action, apparently won his campaign to put the slogan, "Seat Belts Fastened?" on Ohio's 1973 motor vehicle license plates.

The House failed by a 46-36 vote (50 votes were necessary for passage) to pass a bill that would have required legislative approval for putting any slogans on license plates.

Witness Describes Shootout At Opening Of Davis Trial

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The first prosecution witness in the murder-kidnap conspiracy trial of Angela Davis has described a courthouse shootout which led to the charges against the black militant.

Maria Elena Graham, a juror who was taken hostage and wounded, recounted Wednesday the minutes that followed the invasion by an armed man of Judge Harold J. Haley's courtroom at the Marin County Civic Center Aug. 7, 1970.

Her testimony came only minutes after Miss Davis, a Communist and former professor of philosophy at UCLA, told the court as part of the defense's opening statement that she was totally innocent of complicity.

Her voice trembling, Mrs. Graham said she was shot in the arm as she tried to steady herself on the floor of a van in which she and four other persons were being held hostage.

Wanted Men Apprehended By County Sheriff's Deputy

A Route 2, Orient, woman became suspicious after a strange man came to her house Wednesday asking directions and called the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department, who arrested the man and his companion on out-of-county warrants.

The alertness of the Durrett Road resident was commended by Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff Thursday morning.

Thanks to her tip, three house burglaries in Ross County were cleared about 4 a.m. Thursday after one of the men questioned admitted the burglaries.

The men were stopped for interrogation by Deputy Bob Hoover about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday on Route 104 following the complaint.

He charged driver of the car, Jack Burrell, Route 2, Kingston, with driving an unsafe vehicle. After bringing the pair to the department for questioning, it was discovered that Burrell is wanted by the Warren, Mich., police department on a felony warrant for armed robbery.

He later confessed to three Ross County burglaries after extensive questioning. A television set taken during one of the robberies, last week was recovered.

The other man, LeRoy R. Brown, Chillicothe, is being sought for parole violation in Ross County.

3 Cincy Escapees Recaptured

CINCINNATI (AP) — The special Hamilton County grand jury investigating the mass escape March 20 at the Hamilton County Jail was scheduled to deliberate its report today after a first hand inspection of the cellblock.

Eight of the 24 escapees remained at large after apprehension of three prisoners Wednesday — two in Cincinnati and the third during a holdup at San Rafael, Calif.

William Butts, 27, a trusty who reportedly led the escape with a pistol smuggled into the jail, and Cleophus Evans, 23, were arrested in a West End apartment. Both testified before the grand jury.

Hamilton County Sheriff Chief Deputy Harry Culler said that Lloyd Parsley, 26, the other escapee arrested in California would remain there for trial on armed robbery charges. Hamilton County will not seek to return him for trial here on armed robbery charges immediately.

The grand jury was expected to make its final report on Friday.

The jail is located on the top floor of the Hamilton County Courthouse.

Ohio Assembly Recesses; Vote On Strip Mine Bill Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 109th General Assembly recessed for the Easter Holiday Wednesday after setting a Senate vote for next Tuesday on the controversial strip mine measure.

The strip mine bill came out of the closed-door Senate Rules Committee over the objections of Sen. Oakley Collins, R-18 Ironton, a strip mine operator.

Collins said the bill would force many small strip mine operators out of business, possibly his own Collins Minins Co.

Although Collins voted to report the bill out of the committee, he told the Associated Press later he objected mainly because of an emergency clause that would make it effective upon the signature of the governor.

"It's a terrible thing to have an emergency clause on this," Collins said. "If they had left that off it would have given the small operators time to work out some modifications."

Even if the Senate approves

the bill, it must still go back to the House for approval of Senate amendments.

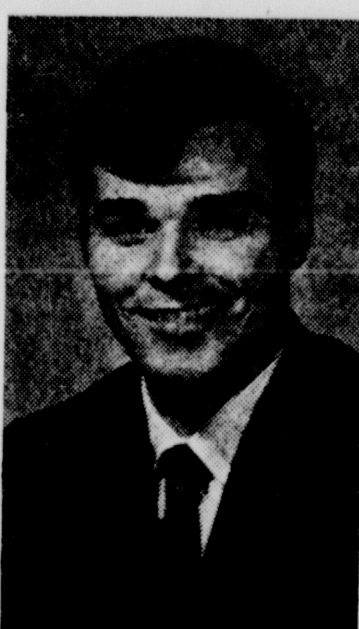

The legislature is scheduled to meet next week — the House, Tuesday through Thursday; and the Senate, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Tentative plans call for the lawmakers to return May 3 for the remainder of the month, then wrap up biennial activities, unless a special session is called.

Gov. John J. Gilligan, in House floor action, apparently won his campaign to put the slogan, "Seat Belts Fastened?" on Ohio's 1973 motor vehicle license plates.

The House failed by a 46-36 vote (50 votes were necessary for passage) to pass a bill that would have required legislative approval for putting any slogans on license plates.

Witness Describes Shootout At Opening Of Davis Trial

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The first prosecution witness in the murder-kidnap conspiracy trial of Angela Davis has described a courthouse shootout which led to the charges against the black militant.

Maria Elena Graham, a juror who was taken hostage and wounded, recounted Wednesday the minutes that followed the invasion by an armed man of Judge Harold J. Haley's courtroom at the Marin County Civic Center Aug. 7, 1970.

Her testimony came only minutes after Miss Davis, a Communist and former professor of philosophy at UCLA, told the court as part of the defense's opening statement that she was totally innocent of complicity.

Her voice trembling, Mrs. Graham said she was shot in the arm as she tried to steady herself on the floor of a van in which she and four other persons were being held hostage.

Wanted Men Apprehended By County Sheriff's Deputy

A Route 2, Orient, woman became suspicious after a strange man came to her house Wednesday asking directions and called the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department, who arrested the man and his companion on out-of-county warrants.

The alertness of the Durrett Road resident was commended by Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff Thursday morning.

Thanks to her tip, three house burglaries in Ross County were cleared about 4 a.m. Thursday after one of the men questioned admitted the burglaries.

The men were stopped for interrogation by Deputy Bob Hoover about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday on Route 104 following the complaint.

He charged driver of the car, Jack Burrell, Route 2, Kingston, with driving an unsafe vehicle. After bringing the pair to the department for questioning, it was discovered that Burrell is wanted by the Warren, Mich., police department on a felony warrant for armed robbery.

He later confessed to three Ross County burglaries after extensive questioning. A television set taken during one of the robberies, last week was recovered.

The other man, LeRoy R. Brown, Chillicothe, is being sought for parole violation in Ross County.

Both are awaiting extradition in the Pickaway County Jail.

More Army Cash Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has asked Congress for $1.45 billion in pay bonuses over the next five years—starting with $30 million effective Saturday—in an effort to draw enough doctors, combat-ready reservists and other specialists for an all-volunteer military force.

It says the $30 million is needed to start filling Selected Reserve units, those most ready for combat, and thus help fill a 50,000-man shortage in National Guard and reserve units around the country.

The Pentagon said the bonuses would help meet President Nixon's goal of an all-volunteer force by June 30, 1973.

The special pay, Defense officials said, would cost $198.7 million for the fiscal year starting next July 1 and $1.45 billion for the fiscal year starting next July 1 and $1.45 billion for the five-year period ending June 30, 1977.

The proposed legislation was sent up by General Counsel J. Fred Buhardt who said the Pentagon is particularly concerned about manpower shortages in the Selected Reserve which would be the first units called to join Army, Navy and Air Force regulars in an emergency.

U.S., Canada Seek To Revive Lake Ontario

TORONTO (AP) — Lake Ontario, like the other Great Lakes, has been a faithful servant to Canada and the United States for three centuries. It has given up its fish, made inland transportation to the Atlantic Ocean possible and provided recreation for thousands of persons.

But now it needs help because pressure on the lake and its four relatives—Erie, Huron, Michigan and Superior—is increasing.

About 35 million persons live on the shores of the Great Lakes. The figure is expected to reach 70 million by the year 2000.

Lake Ontario's once-clear water is clogged with algae and man has made it his cesspool for waste. In the summer, when it's warm, algae and scavenger fish wash up on its shore to rot and stink.

The blood-sucking lamprey eel, which found its way into the lake in the 1930s, chews into the coho salmon population, mallards try to swim in oil slicks and, in the urban areas, man tries to watch the sunset through polluted air.

Ever since French explorer Etienne Brule discovered the 7,313-square mile lake in 1615, it has served man from its western mouth at the Niagara River to the St. Lawrence.

But now Lake Ontario, its water and the wildlife it supports are tired.

Perhaps that is why Canada and the United States have decided to return a favor.

The two countries will spend $15 million in the next year studying more than 100 aspects of the lake.

The study will involve more than 600 scientists, five ships, 14 planes and a support base of millions of dollars worth of laboratory equipment.

The study, announced jointly by the two federal governments last year, is known as the International Field Year of the Great Lakes and is part of the International Hydrological Decade, a program initiated by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization—UNESCO.

The study, which starts April 1, is being officially aboard the Martin Carlsen, a federal government vessel which works out of its base at the Canada Center for Inland Waters at Burlington, Ont.

The steering committee for the project says in a news release: "The objectives of the IFYGL... are to understand the Lake Ontario drainage basin well enough to ensure that its waters will always be sufficient and of good quality; and to improve the management of operations that can harm the environment and assist operations that are affected by environmental conditions."

The study is organized under six fundamental scientific pro-

Primitive Tribe Under Scrutiny

TASADAY FOREST, Philippines (AP) — Scientists on an expedition that has found the Tasaday people living in an isolated forest as cave dwellers say their information could lead to a new understanding of prehistoric man.

The Rev. Frank Lynch, director of the Institute of Philippine Culture and chief anthropologist with the expedition, said today the 24-member Tasaday tribe also could provide fresh insights into man's relation to his environment, his adaptability and his attitudes toward existence.

Discovery of the Tasadays, Lynch said, marks the first time cave dwellers have been observed in modern times.

The Tasadays' existence up to now has included such isolation that tribesmen say no outsiders have ever visited their three caves on the side of a steep mountain deep in this southern Philippine rain forest.

The expedition, organized by Panamin, a Philippine government-supported foundation to protect minorities, reached the Tasaday homestead Thursday.

Since then Lynch and other members of the party, including the American aviator and conservationist Charles A. Lindbergh have been studying the gentle Tasadays' peaceful existence.

Marriage Planned Without Proposal

DEAR ABBY: About a week ago my boy friend and I finally set our wedding date. Nobody was surprised because we had been going together nearly three years.

My mother asked how he "proposed" to me, and I told her I didn't think he proposed at all. She looked at me like I was crazy, and asked, "YOU didn't propose to HIM, did you?"

Then we got into a big discussion, and I told her that nobody proposed to anybody, we decided a long time ago to be married. My mother insisted there had to be a "proposal." I still can't remember any.

I have since asked my married friends, and they can't remember their "proposals" either.

Can it be that proposals have gone out of style? Please put your answer in the paper. My mother still thinks I'm crazy. And sign me "GETTING MARRIED WITHOUT A PROPOSAL", or SALLY J.

DEAR SALLY: You're not "crazy." I'll bet that nine out of ten couples who have gone together for a long time have no recollection of a "proposal." (If any of your readers can recall the time, place (and words) of YOUR proposal, I'd like to hear from you.)

DEAR ABBY: I do not want to go to my funeral. I have devised the following plan to avoid it:

While my funeral service is being preached at the church, I have instructed the undertaker to take my body to the cemetery and bury it. Should anyone care to look at my grave after the services have been concluded at the church, they may do so.

It is grief enough to LOSE a loved one without having to follow a closed box in and out of the church, and then slowly to the cemetery. And then have to stand there and watch it lowered into the ground.

Not for me. Some of my family think I am nuts. What do you think? I'd like the opinion of others, too.

MRS. M.B.B. GREENWOOD, S.C.

DEAR MRS. B.: I am with those of your family who do NOT think you are "nuts."

DEAR ABBY: Our 12-year-old son is our problem. He refuses to participate in any sport. My husband says his coordination is good and he could do well in sports if he tried. My husband was an outstanding athlete and it kills him to see his only son shy away from it.

Our son is interested in sports as a spectator, however; he begs to go to the games with his father, and he gets his homework done ahead of time so he can watch sports on television.

How can we get him to participate? He's been this way since he was very young.

HIS MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: As I see it, the problem is your husband, not your son. In his eagerness to have his son become an outstanding athlete, he's turned the boy off.

Your son, rather than fail and disappoint his father, is protecting himself by refusing to participate.

Perhaps if your husband emphasized the fun and exercise of playing rather than the importance of winning, your son would become a participant instead of an observer. I hope so.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DECATUR DREAMER: Don't tell your husband about your dream. You may give him ideas he never dreamed about.

The study will involve more than 600 scientists, five ships, 14 planes and a support base of millions of dollars worth of laboratory equipment.

The study, announced jointly by the two federal governments last year, is known as the International Field Year of the Great Lakes and is part of the International Hydrological Decade, a program initiated by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization—UNESCO.

The study, which starts April 1, is being officially aboard the Martin Carlsen, a federal government vessel which works out of its base at the Canada Center for Inland Waters at Burlington, Ont.

The steering committee for the project says in a news release: "The objectives of the IFYGL... are to understand the Lake Ontario drainage basin well enough to ensure that its waters will always be sufficient and of good quality; and to improve the management of operations that can harm the environment and assist operations that are affected by environmental conditions."

The study is organized under six fundamental scientific programs — biology — chemistry, boundary layer, energy budget, lake meteorology, terrestrial water balance and water movement.

population center, convenient to study, and already shows signs of deterioration due to the stress of human activities along its shores, says the committee.

"However, most of what is learned in the Field Year will be closely applicable to the management of the other lakes and to large lakes throughout the world."

Primitive Tribe Under Scrutiny

TASADAY FOREST, Philippines (AP) — Scientists on an expedition that has found the Tasaday people living in an isolated forest as cave dwellers say their information could lead to a new understanding of prehistoric man.

The Rev. Frank Lynch, director of the Institute of Philippine Culture and chief anthropologist with the expedition, said today the 24-member Tasaday tribe also could provide fresh insights into man's relation to his environment, his adaptability and his attitudes toward existence.

Discovery of the Tasadays, Lynch said, marks the first time cave dwellers have been observed in modern times.

The Tasadays' existence up to now has included such isolation that tribesmen say no outsiders have ever visited their three caves on the side of a steep mountain deep in this southern Philippine rain forest.

The expedition, organized by Panamin, a Philippine government-supported foundation to protect minorities, reached the Tasaday homelands Thursday.

Since then Lynch and other members of the party, including the American aviator and conservationist Charles A. Lindbergh have been studying the gentle Tasadays' peaceful existence.

Centenarians

More than 10,000 Americans have passed their 100th birthdays. This is a surprising statistic because most newspaper readers who have read of someone reaching that milestone thought it was a rare event.

For those seeking a clue to a long life, there are a number of similarities worth noting. But few of them are likely to change the conscious stream of American life.

The vast majority, according to available data, achieved little formal education in their lifetimes. This is not surprising. In their youth hard work was the rule and time out for schooling was a luxury to many.

Few centenarians are bachelors or spinsters. There hasn't been enough research to determine whether this marital status was deliberate or the subjects merely had more time than most persons to find a spouse.

Most of the oldsters show moderation or abstinence in the use of tobacco and alcohol, but there are enough who don't to give statisticians trouble. Diets offer no clue to longevity.

One similarity which does make sense is the environment enjoyed by the majority of the centenarians most of their lives. A majority of them are farmers who spent the early part of their lives tilling the soil without the aid of labor-saving machinery. Of course, most people lived on farms when they were young.

Obviously, hard work and fresh air are not detrimental to long life.

Millions See Eiffel

The biggest pile of iron in the world is the Eiffel Tower. An unbiased visitor will stand in awe at the foot of the tower, impressed more by the architectural grandeur presented by the iron lacework of grilles and columns than by its beauty.

In 1889, author Guy de Maupassant described it as "a tall, lanky pyramid, this assemblage of iron ladders, this ugly skeleton with its chimney-like shaft."

It has survived two world wars, 350 suicides, numerous lightning strikes and 40 tons of orange paint every seven years. But the tower is still one of the world's greatest tourist attractions.

The world's tallest structure when built for the Paris Exposition of 1889, the Eiffel Tower has since been passed in height by several New York City buildings. But there is something about the great iron mass which dwarfs comparison with a conventional building.

New Rockefeller

By JEFFERY HART

In 1960, Nelson Rockefeller was the acknowledged leader of Eastern liberal Republicanism. When his challenge that year to the nomination of Richard Nixon failed, Rockefeller nevertheless imposed on Nixon the humiliation of the famous Treaty of Fifth Avenue. Nixon, without telling his staff, slipped away from the Republican convention in Chicago and flew to New York where Rockefeller proceeded to re-write the Republican platform.

The most inflammatory Rockefeller revisions were sentences praising the sit-ins in the South — which, whatever else they were, were certainly illegal.

Four years later, in 1964, Rockefeller was again in the foreground as the cynosure of conservative hatred. His primary campaign against Goldwater had gone far toward destroying the Arizona as a viable candidate. When the San Francisco convention nevertheless nominated Goldwater, Rockefeller rose to denounce extremists, night-riders and all the other Halloween hobgoblins of liberal demonology. This rhetoric was booed to the rafters of the Cow Palace.

In 1968, sure enough, there was Rockefeller again, challenging Nixon from the liberal position, hectoring presenting himself that summer as a sort of surrogate Bobby Kennedy.

In 1970, however, remarkable changes began to be visible. Reading the trends in New York State correctly, Rockefeller was benign toward the conservative candidacy of James Buckley, and, in tacit complicity with the White House, helped to slip the shiv into liberal hero Charles Goodell. That same year, Rockefeller overwhelmed Arthur Goldberg in the gubernatorial race by running a hard-line law-and-order campaign and filling the air with denunciations of welfare chiselers.

Since 1970, the transformation has solidified. Rockefeller's welfare crackdown was among the toughest in the nation, and drew admiring glances from Sacramento, Calif. He is for aid to parochial schools — a liberal no-no. He is the Monster of Attica. He worries publicly about national defense.

And lo, the sit-in celebrant of 1960 has now backed President Nixon to the hilt on busing and, not only that, he has come out against scatter-site housing of the type proposed for Forest Hills.

Rockefeller's most recent Albany press conference was a delight for connoisseurs.

Nixon's busing proposal? Well, said Rockefeller, it is "an approach which seems to me is very constructive under the circumstances." The New York Times howled in pain and disbelief.

Forest Hills-type schemes? Thumbs down, said Rockefeller. "You've got the question of community." The transformation of the picture of Dorian Gray was not more complete.

But a little translation may be in order here: Rockefeller wants to get out of Albany and move to Washington either as Vice President or as Secretary of Defense. The State Department? No thanks. Henry the K used to be a Rockefeller employee, and Rockefeller is not about to reverse that relationship. And in 1976 the three contenders for the Republican nomination will be Agnew, Connally — and Rockefeller.

Asked whether Jacob Javits might seek the New York governorship, Rocky observed with a wink that "it's a natural thing for a vigorous public official to aspire to higher office."

Tax Estimates Prove Accurate, Hovey Reports

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Department of Taxation says its original estimates of income from the new state income tax appear to be holding up.

State Treasurer Gertrude Donahue reports existing taxes have increased by 15 per cent to $1.19 billion for the first eight months of fiscal 1972. The increase is $173.8 million more than for the same period last year.

Despite the apparent accuracy of income tax revenue estimates, Finance Director Harold Hovey said, "we won't know until May whether we blew our estimates." He noted Illinois miscalculated by $100 million when it first adopted an income tax.

Officials have predicted the new tax will produce $312 million through the current biennium, which ends June 30, 1973.

Supreme Court Rules Against Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ford violated antitrust law when it entered the spark plug business and took over the "Autolite" name, the Supreme Court concluded 7 to 0.

The ruling on the 1961 acquisition requires the motor company to sell off the spark plug factory in Postoria, Ohio, and not to manufacture spark plugs for 10 years.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I have a small growth on my Achilles tendon. Two doctors have told me that it is common and of no concern. But in the past year it has grown from the size of a small pea to that of a small grape.

Don't you think it should be removed?

Mrs. O. J. L., Conn.

Dear Mrs. L.:
You have been assured that the growth on your heel is not cancerous. Had either of your doctors been concerned or suspicious they would have suggested immediate removal of this growth.

That it has grown during the last year is probably of no great significance, but it certainly deserves re-examination.

Surgical removal is not dangerous or incapacitating in most instances. You will probably feel more secure psychologically if it is removed.

I wish you would make comment on eating meat that is barely cooked. Our 14-year-old son will not eat hamburgers or any meat unless it is practically raw.

Is this unhealthy? Or is my attitude unreasonable?

Mr. A. R., Maine

A gourmet delight for some people is steak tartare, which is raw ground beef usually topped with a raw egg, raw chopped onion, and capers.

The fact that it is uncooked and eaten raw does not make it indigestible or unhealthy. If the meat is fresh and unspoiled there is no danger in eating it raw.

There is one major exception, of course. All pork and pork products should be thoroughly cooked because of the possibility of trichinosis.

Is there any danger to daily body massage?

Mr. K. G., Calif.

Dear Mr. G.:
I almost envy the person who can take the time out and indulge in this comforting interlude in a hard day's work. There are excellent physical and psychological advantages that come with it.

Massage can be classed as passive exercise and is a fine way to keep the tone of the muscles at its maximum. Too strenuous or vigorous massage should be avoided, however, especially during the early phases of such a program.

Heavy weights should be lifted by more than one person.

Vatican Data Made Public

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A million and a half persons around the world are in the direct service of the Roman Catholic Church as priests, friars or nuns, according to Vatican statistics made public Wednesday.

Still, the Church was suffering from a shortage. Thousands defect every year, and new additions hardly make up for those who die.

The figures were part of the first modern book of Church statistics prepared by the Vatican.

According To Boyle

By PHIL THOMAS (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Bashing her film husband over the head with a poker "really isn't my scene," actress Joan Collins says wryly of her role in her first, and she claims, her last horror movie.

Miss Collins, who looks lovely as she calmly commits bloody murder in one of the five segments making up "Tales from the Crypt," described her part in the film as "murdering my husband and then running around looking frightened while being attacked and murdered myself by a homicidal maniac wearing a Santa Claus suit. Good, clean, simple fun!"

The attractive actress says she has turned down offers to appear in other horror films because "I find it very difficult to keep a straight face while doing the sort of theatrics that are required in this type of film."

In "Tales," she points out, "I murder my husband for his insurance by hitting him over the head with a poker. That's ludicrous. I'd have to be built like King Kong to have hit him hard enough to kill him."

"That's what I mean about horror films. None of it makes sense. But if one is an actor one just goes ahead and does the job. Actually, I think everyone should do something once, and as far as horror goes I've just done it."

The British actress, former wife of actor Anthony Newley and now married to producer Ronald Kass, says, "I'd much rather be on television, which in England is very good. Actually I do appear on TV with show some of my old movies monotonously regularly. They and reruns of some of the TV series I worked in."

Miss Collins' movie credits include: "The Virgin Queen," "The Girl on the Red Velvet Swing," "Island in the Sun," and "Rally Round the Flag Boys." She says she hopes to act later this year in a television production of "The Taming of the Shrew."

She says she prefers to appear on television rather than in films because "in TV there is not so much emphasis on technique, of playing it exactly as the director wants you to play it."

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Not long ago most intelligent readers would turn the page in a story about inflation when they came to the terms "cost-push" and "demand-pull."

Resigned, fed up and bored, they'd mumble "inflation is inflation." No matter if the money were pushed or pulled or dribbled through a hole in the pocketbook, the end result was the same: The pocketbook was lighter.

But now it does matter. With an inflation crisis brewing, everyone in politics and labor and merchandising and manufacturing is uptight. They search for the elusive explanation, can't find it and hope they won't be blamed.

Does the fault lie with the farmer, worker, transporter, processor, wholesaler, retailer, buyer? Each denies blame, but as in any well developed mystery story you may be sure the culprit is in the room.

Are prices rising because costs at every stage in production are rising, thus forcing businessmen at each stage to charge higher prices as they move food and merchandise to consumer markets?

Or are consumers demanding so many goods and services that, relatively, supplies are insufficient to satisfy the market?

Some analysts still cling to the notion that consumer demand is forcing up prices, at least in some items that are temporarily in short supply. But this hardly can be the total answer because of a number of reasons.

Most obvious of these is that the consumer isn't standing in line for a chance to buy any product these days. He has the money to buy what he wants but he is grimly suppressing his desire.

In fact, inflation would be considerably worse today than it is but for the native wisdom of buyers who study their cash register tapes and their checkbooks and receipts so closely that pennies look like dollars.

The savings rates has been consistently high this year, and unpublished polls suggest that the rate may even be climbing in reaction to and paralleling the rise in prices.

The demand-pull theory seems therefore to be worthless as an explanation of the current high price mystery. Most likely the answer is to be found by examining the cost-push theory.

Throughout the production distributing and retailing systems we find operators complaining about their high costs. Each explains that it is forced to add to its prices because others have added to its costs.

The farmer or raw material producer argues that his basic costs are higher and that he must therefore raise prices in order to stay in business. No windfall here, they say.

While farm prices have risen, it will surprise some learn that official government figures show that for each dollar consumers spent on food in February only 39.7 cents went to the farmer, down from 40.1 cents in January.

In food prices at least, the finger seems to point at the middleman. But who is he, and why have his costs risen so much? The high wages he must pay? Or are his higher prices based on greed rather than costs?

At each stage of moving food from farm to mouth there are middlemen: cooperatives, truckers, processors, packagers, distributors, wholesalers, retailers.

Are little increases throughout the system adding up to the big bills you must pay, or is one of them adding inordinately to his prices? In other words, should we add to cost-push and demand-pull the theory of profit haul?

If he can unravel the mystery, Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. of the Price Commission not only will deserve the thanks of everyone but should be recognized as one of the great detectives of all time.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I have a small growth on my Achilles tendon. Two doctors have told me that it is common and of no concern. But in the past year it has grown from the size of a small pea to that of a small grape.

Don't you think it should be removed?

Mrs. O. J. L., Conn.

Dear Mrs. L.: You have been assured that the growth on your heel is not cancerous. Had either of your doctors been concerned or suspicious they would have suggested immediate removal of this growth.

That it has grown during the last year is probably of no great significance, but it certainly deserves re-examination.

Surgical removal is not dangerous or incapacitating in most instances. You will probably feel more secure psychologically if it is removed.

I wish you would make comment on eating meat that is barely cooked. Our 14-year-old son will not eat hamburgers or any meat unless it is practically raw.

Is this unhealthy? Or is my attitude unreasonable?

Mr. A. R., Maine

Dear Mr. R.: A gourmet delight for some people is steak tartare, which is raw ground beef usually topped with a raw egg, raw chopped onion, and capers.

The fact that it is uncooked and eaten raw does not make it indigestible or unhealthy. If the meat is fresh and unspoiled there is no danger in eating it raw.

There is one major exception, of course. All pork and pork products should be thoroughly cooked because of the possibility of trichinosis.

Is there any danger to daily body massage?

Mr. K. G., Calif.

Dear Mr. G.: I almost envy the person who can take the time out and indulge in this comforting interlude in a hard day's work. There are excellent physical and psychological advantages that come with it.

Massage can be classed as passive exercise and is a fine way to keep the tone of the muscles at its maximum. Too strenuous or vigorous massage should be avoided, however, especially during the early phases of such a program.

Heavy weights should be lifted by more than one person.

Vatican Data Made Public

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A million and a half persons around the world are in the direct service of the Roman Catholic Church as priests, friars or nuns, according to Vatican statistics made public Wednesday.

Still, the Church was suffering from a shortage. Thousands defect every year, and new additions hardly make up for those who die.

The figures were part of the first modern book of Church statistics prepared by the Vatican.

According To Boyle

By PHIL THOMAS (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Bashing her film husband over the head with a poker "really isn't my scene," actress Joan Collins says wryly of her role in her first, and she claims, her last horror movie.

Miss Collins, who looks lovely as she calmly commits bloody murder in one of the five segments making up "Tales from the Crypt," described her part in the film as "murdering my husband and then running around looking frightened while being attacked and murdered myself by a homicidal maniac wearing a Santa Claus suit. Good, clean, simple fun!"

The attractive actress says she has turned down offers to appear in other horror films because "I find it very difficult to keep a straight face while doing the sort of theatrics that are required in this type of film."

In "Tales," she points out, "I murder my husband for his insurance by hitting him over the head with a poker. That's ludicrous. I'd have to be built like King Kong to have hit him hard enough to kill him."

"That's what I mean about horror films. None of it makes sense. But if one is an actor one just goes ahead and does the job. Actually, I think everyone should do something once, and as far as horror goes I've just done it."

The British actress, former wife of actor Anthony Newley and now married to producer Ronald Kass, says, "I'd much rather be on television, which in England is very good. Actually I do appear on TV with show some of my old movies monotonously regularly. They and reruns of some of the TV series I worked in."

Miss Collins' movie credits include: "The Virgin Queen," "The Girl on the Red Velvet Swing," "Island in the Sun," and "Rally Round the Flag Boys." She says she hopes to act later this year in a television production of "The Taming of the Shrew."

She says she prefers to appear on television rather than in films because "in TV there is not so much emphasis on technique, of playing it exactly as the director wants you to play it."

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Not long ago most intelligent readers would turn the page in a story about inflation when they came to the terms "cost-push" and "demand-pull."

Resigned, fed up and bored, they'd mumble "inflation is inflation." No matter if the money were pushed or pulled or dribbled through a hole in the pocketbook, the end result was the same: The pocketbook was lighter.

But now it does matter. With an inflation crisis brewing, everyone in politics and labor and merchandising and manufacturing is uptight. They search for the elusive explanation, can't find it and hope they won't be blamed.

Does the fault lie with the farmer, worker, transporter, processor, wholesaler, retailer, buyer? Each denies blame, but as in any well developed mystery story you may be sure the culprit is in the room.

Are prices rising because costs at every stage in production are rising, thus forcing businessmen at each stage to charge higher prices as they move food and merchandise to consumer markets?

Or are consumers demanding so many goods and services that, relatively, supplies are insufficient to satisfy the market?

Some analysts still cling to the notion that consumer demand is forcing up prices, at least in some items that are temporarily in short supply. But this hardly can be the total answer because of a number of reasons.

Most obvious of these is that the consumer isn't standing in line for a chance to buy any product these days. He has the money to buy what he wants but he is grimly suppressing his desire.

In fact, inflation would be considerably worse today than it is but for the native wisdom of buyers who study their cash register tapes and their checkbooks and receipts so closely that pennies look like dollars.

The savings rates have been consistently high this year, and unpublished polls suggest that the rate may even be climbing in reaction to and paralleling the rise in prices.

The demand-pull theory seems therefore to be worthless as an explanation of the current high price mystery. Most likely the answer is to be found by examining the cost-push theory.

Throughout the production, distributing and retailing systems we find operators complaining about their high costs. Each explains that it is forced to add to its prices because others have added to its costs.

The farmer or raw material producer argues that his basic costs are higher and that he must therefore raise prices in order to stay in business. No windfall here, they say.

While farm prices have risen, it will surprise some learn that official government figures show that for each dollar consumers spent on food in February only 39.7 cents went to the farmer, down from 40.1 cents in January.

In food prices at least, the finger seems to point at the middleman. But who is he, and why have his costs risen so much? The high wages he must pay? Or are his higher prices based on greed rather than costs?

At each stage of moving food from farm to mouth there are middlemen: cooperatives, truckers, processors, packagers, distributors, wholesalers, retailers.

Are little increases throughout the system adding up to the big bills you must pay, or is one of them adding inordinately to his prices? In other words, should we add to cost-push and demand-pull the theory of profit haul?

If he can unravel the mystery, Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. of the Price Commission not only will deserve the thanks of everyone but should be recognized as one of the great detectives of all time.

New Rockefeller

By JEFFERY HART

In 1960, Nelson Rockefeller was the acknowledged leader of Eastern liberal Republicanism. When his challenge that year to the nomination of Richard Nixon failed, Rockefeller nevertheless imposed on Nixon the humiliation of the famous Treaty of Fifth Avenue. Nixon, without telling his staff, slipped away from the Republican convention in Chicago and flew to New York where Rockefeller proceeded to re-write the Republican platform.

The most inflammatory Rockefeller revisions were sentences praising the sit-ins in the South — which, whatever else they were, were certainly illegal.

Four years later, in 1964, Rockefeller was again in the foreground as the cynosure of conservative hatred. His primary campaign against Goldwater had gone far toward destroying the Arizona as a viable candidate. When the San Francisco convention nevertheless nominated Goldwater, Rockefeller rose to denounce extremists, night-riders and all the other Halloween hobgoblins of liberal demagoguery. This rhetoric was booed to the rafters of the Cow Palace.

In 1968, sure enough, there was Rockefeller again, challenging Nixon from the liberal position, hectoring himself that summer as a sort of surrogate Bobby Kennedy.

In 1970, however, remarkable changes began to be visible. Reading the trends in New York State correctly, Rockefeller was benign toward the conservative candidacy of James Buckley, and, in tacit complicity with the White House, helped to slip the shiv into liberal hero Charles Goodell. That same year, Rockefeller overwhelmed Arthur Goldberg in the gubernatorial race by running a hard-line law-and-order campaign and filling the air with denunciations of welfare chiselers.

Since 1970, the transformation has solidified. Rockefeller's welfare crackdown was among the toughest in the nation, and drew admiring glances from Sacramento, Calif. He is for aid to parochial schools — a liberal no-no. He is the Monster of Attica. He worries publicly about national defense.

And lo, the sit-in celebrant of 1960 has now backed President Nixon to the hilt on busing and, not only that, he has come out against scatter-site housing of the type proposed for Forest Hills.

Rockefeller's most recent Albany press conference was a delight for connoisseurs.

Nixon's busing proposal? Well, said Rockefeller, it is "an approach which seems to me is very constructive under the circumstances." The New York Times howled in pain and disbelief.

Forest Hills-type schemes? Thumbs down, said Rockefeller. "You've got the question of community." The transformation of the picture of Dorian Gray was not more complete.

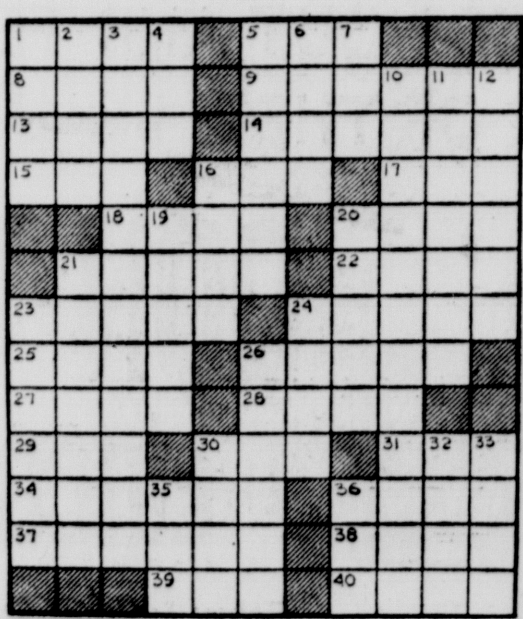

But a little translation may be in order here: Rockefeller wants to get out of Albany and move to Washington either as Vice President or as Secretary of Defense. The State Department? No thanks. Henry the K used to be a Rockefeller employee, and Rockefeller is not about to reverse that relationship. And in 1976 the three contenders for the Republican nomination will be Agnew, Connally — and Rockefeller.

Asked whether Jacob Javits might seek the New York governorship, Rocky observed with a wink that "its a natural thing for a vigorous public official to aspire to higher office."

PIQUA, Ohio (AP) — A temporary injunction hearing to block a proposed Wright State University branch campus in Piqua has been postponed until May 11.

Cable Project Completed In Ashville Area

General Telephone Co. of Ohio today announced the completion of two cable projects in the Ashville exchange area.

Paul G. Diener, Circleville district commercial manager, said the jobs are part of the company's continuing program to expand facilities for upgrading party lines and growth. The cost totaled more than $43,000.

The company is engineering all cable additions to provide one-party or reduced party lines to customers who want upgraded service, Diener noted.

One of the jobs expanded facilities along Ohio 104 an Ohio 762 toward Commercial Point. The second project boosted facilities in the southeast rural area.

Both of the cable projects included a large portion of buried cable. The company plans to bury all future cable installations where possible, Diener said.

Ashville is one of eight exchanges in the Circleville district. It serves 2,708 telephones in a 96.9 square mile area of northern Pickaway County.

Price Increases

Ripped By Woman

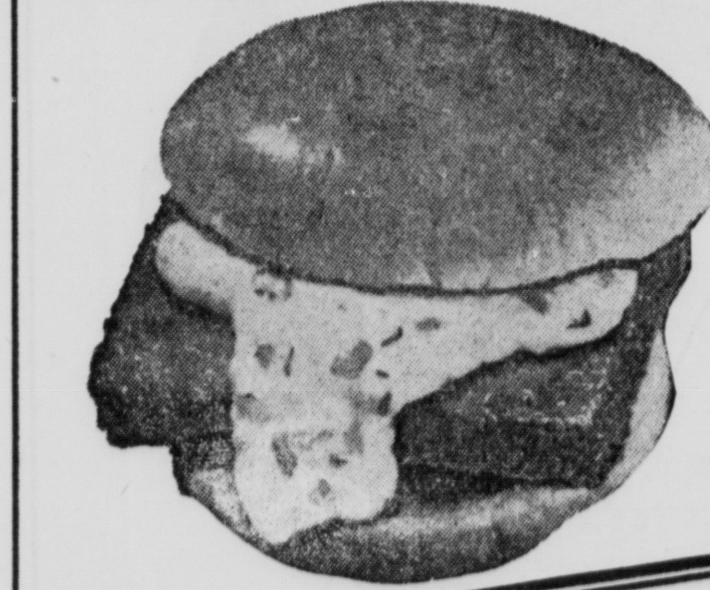

WASHINGTON (AP) — After the television news cameras had gone, after the congressmen, lobbyists, economists and union chiefs had finished, Carolyn Sugich took the witness chair and told the Price Commission of a Cleveland housewife's utter frustration at rising prices.

"What does the present economic situation mean to our families personally?" she asked.

"Hoping that no one becomes ill, no appliances need repair, the car holds together, families are cutting down and cutting out to what is absolutely necessary—and the list of what is essential is getting shorter and shorter."

The prospects for immediate improvements in state employment are mixed.
The Ohio Bureau of Employment Services fixed unemployment

ment in the state for January — the latest monthly figures available — at 235,000. It said the number of persons holding jobs that month was 4.2 million.
There are some immediate prospects for job improvements. U.S. Steel Corp., at Lorain reports current employment of nearly 7,000 hourly and salaried workers. The plant closed last July because of a threatened nationwide steel strike.

A Youngstown, production resumed recently at U.S. Steel's Ohio works, also shut down last July with the loss of 3,000 jobs.

Fred Herr, director of area development in the state Department of Development, said the number of inquiries from out-state industries about Ohio sites has increased 50 per cent over the same period of 1971.

Herr said Ohio should see an increase in industrial growth.

In Cleveland, business leaders say that city's depressed heavy machine tool industry could get a needed boost through trade with China.

Robert Biwen, chairman of the research council of the Greater Cleveland Growth Association, said the Peoples Republic of China offers a tremendous opportunity as a market for the tools, road building equipment and steel manufactured in the Cleveland area.

Charles Neustadt, director of the international trade division of the Ohio Department of Development, said he is examining this possibility.

In other areas, efforts are being concentrated in bringing in new industry, new business for existing industry and expansion of existing industry.

The Greater Dayton Area Development Council has a three-year program to stimulate economic growth. The council had budgeted $300,000 for the effort to attract new industry.

The national economy, labor management disputes, cutbacks in Vietnam war spending and technological advances—automation—are listed among the major causes of job losses in Ohio.

Shenango Corp., Columbus, planned to shut down today, putting 375 persons out of work.

Ex-Cell-O Corp., has closed one of two plants at Lima. The remaining employment is set at 650, compared with 2,000 jobs there in 1968 at both plants.

Radio Corporation of America closed its plant in Cincinnati last year, affecting 800 employees.

National Cash Register closed its plant recently at Washington Court House. A dairy processing firm there is considering moving.

A General Mills plant at Lancaster plans to shut down June 30, putting more 200 persons out of work.

Lockheed Aircraft Corp., is phasing out its plant at Lockheed where employment once reached 200 persons but is now less than 50.

McBee Corp., which prints office forms, has moved part of its operation from Athens, eliminating 200 of the 500 jobs at its plant there.

On the bright side, a manufacturing firm at Logan has announced a warehouse expansion that will create some jobs and has tentative plans to expand its manufacturing operations there.

In Athens, a new retail store opened this week, creating 60 jobs, and there are proposals for a shopping center that would add other jobs.

In northern Ohio, the hardest hit industries are steel, metal fabrication and machinery manufacturing.

Ermen Schulze of the Cleveland office of the Bureau of Employment Services, said heavy industry was hardest hit in January. He said employment sagged to 193,800, compared with 203,400 the previous year.

However, Schulze said non-manufacturing employment was up 1.2 per cent for the period with 552,700 persons holding jobs.

Charles Nieman, labor market analyst for the Cincinnati district of the Bureau of Employment Services, said January unemployment levels were at 5.1 per cent of the work force.

"The big thing here," Nieman said, "was the dropoff in manufacturing employment, about 10,600 workers from this area from January 1971 to January 1972." He said the actual employment loss was about 4,100 because there was a rise in the amount of employment in groups such as trade and service industries and education. Service industries include government.

Neiman said consolidation of General Motors' Fisher Body and Chevrolet plants into the GM Assembly Division cost the jobs of most of the third shift, dropping the work force at the two plants from about 9,000 to 4,000.

But Neiman said he doesn't foresee any big layoffs in the area during the remainder of this year. Adding a less than heartening note, Neiman said he knew of no new major plant locations or expansions planned for the area.

Ohio Development Director David Sweet said he doesn't know about any plant closings.

Herr said much of the business expansion in the state last year did not involve new firms. And he said that as far as the capital city was concerned, last year was not a good one for industrial growth.

William Papier, director of research and statistics of the Bureau of Employment Services said there were 414,000 persons holding down jobs in the Columbus area in January, setting a jobless rate of 3.6 per cent. Papier termed the Columbus area "one of the best . . . in the state in terms of employment stability and low rate of unemployment."

Backing up that assertion was William Guthrie, chairman of the board of Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Guthrie said the Columbus area is better than many communities in Ohio. "We typically have a steadier employment" rate. And he said that "most merchants think they are doing good business."

John Mountain, director of communications for the Development Department, said there were 768 new plants or expansions of existing commercial-industrial facilities in Ohio during 1971.

That was better than those reported in the previous year in all states which compete with Ohio economically, Mountain said, with the sole exception of Florida.

"And these 768 expansions came in a 'down' year economically," Mountain noted.

Mountain cited the Columbus area, with its highly developed expressway system, central location, steady population and work force due to the legislature and Ohio State University, and good air and rail facilities as perhaps the state's strongest economic sector.

Cable Project Completed In Ashville Area

General Telephone Co. of Ohio today announced the completion of two cable projects in the Ashville exchange area.

Paul G. Diener, Circleville district commercial manager, said the jobs are part of the company's continuing program to expand facilities for upgrading party lines and growth. The cost totaled more than $43,000.

The company is engineering all cable additions to provide one-party or reduced party lines to customers who want upgraded service, Diener noted.

One of the jobs expanded facilities along Ohio 104 an Ohio 762 toward Commercial Point. The second project boosted facilities in the southeast rural area.

Both of the cable projects included a large portion of buried cable. The company plans to bury all future cable installations where possible, Diener said.

Ashville is one of eight exchanges in the Circleville district. It serves 2,708 telephones in a 96.9 square mile area of northern Pickaway County.

Price Increases

Ripped By Woman

WASHINGTON (AP) — After the television news cameras had gone, after the congressmen, lobbyists, economists and union chiefs had finished, Carolyn Sugiuchi took the witness chair and told the Price Commission of a Cleveland housewife's utter frustration at rising prices.

"What does the present economic situation mean to our families personally?" she asked.

"Hoping that no one becomes ill, no appliances need repair, the car holds together, families are cutting down and cutting out to what is absolutely necessary—and the list of what is essential is getting shorter and shorter."

Ohio Looking For Work; Unemployment Tops 5 Per Cent

By M. ALLEN HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
The State of Ohio is looking for work. The reason: More than five per cent of the state's labor force is unemployed.

The prospects for immediate improvements in state employment is mixed.

The Ohio Bureau of Employment Services fixed unemployment

ment in the state for January — the latest monthly figures available — at 235,000. It said the number of persons holding jobs that month was 4.2 million.

Social Security Answers

Q. I'm getting monthly social security retirement checks and working part-time. Last month I told the social security office that I expected to earn $1,700 this year. But now I've gotten a raise and can expect to make $2,100 this year. When should I tell social security about my higher income?

A. Immediately. Call or visit any social security office. The dollar amount of your social security checks this year depends on the total amount you earn. By immediately notifying social security of your raise, you can avoid the financial burden of having to refund an overpayment later.

Q. I never worked under social security but I get monthly social security checks as a widow. Will I be entitled to Medicare when I am 65?

A. Yes. You are eligible for Medicare at 65. Anyone who is entitled to social security retirement checks at 65 is also eligible for Medicare.

Q. I get monthly social security retirement benefits on my husband's record, even though we aren't living together anymore. If we get divorced, will I still get my checks?

A. If you and he were married 20 years or longer, you will continue to get monthly benefits on his work record after the divorce. You should report the divorce to any social security office when it becomes final.

Q. I was told that I would get social security credit of $160 per month for each month of my active military service from 1941 to 1944. However, I sent a post card for a record of my social security earnings and found my military time wasn't listed. Why was it left out?

A. Military service is not actually credited to your record until the time when you apply for social security benefits. When you apply, you will be asked for your discharge papers or other proof of military service. The people at the social security office will see that you get your military credits then.

Clearcutting Use Of Forests Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Interior public lands subcommittee Thursday recommended guidelines for the regulation of timber harvesting in federal forests with restrictions against the controversial practice of widespread clearcutting.

Clearcutting, the harvesting of timber in large blocks or strips instead of by selected individual trees, is opposed by many conservation groups.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, called a news conference to release a report asking the Agriculture Department's Forest Service and Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management to follow the suggested guidelines in permitting sales of timber from millions of acres of federal forests.

CLEARWATER BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Relax, you can't catch cancer from your cat, says Dr. Robert Schneider.

Schneider and his associates at a California laboratory are the only scientists in the world keeping track of tumors affecting household pets such as cats and dogs.

They cooperate with another laboratory which keeps tabs on cancers in humans so they can assess the chances of animals transmitting tumors to families with which they live.

About three years ago, a scientific study suggested humans might contract leukemia, a cancer of the blood, from cats suffering from a virus causing leukemia in the animals.

Ohio Pen Operations Near Normal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Operations at the Ohio Penitentiary were near normal today with prisoners back on work assignments and most shops running.

However, guards were continuing to work 12-hour shifts because of staff shortages resulting from the dismissal of 21 guards for participating in a sick-out.

Assistant Warden L. G. Rideout said it could be "some time" before the guards return to their regular eight-hour shifts.

In addition to the 21 guards fired, 135 face possible dismissal, suspension or loss of pay if a review being made by the state Personnel Department shows their absences were not legitimate.

Guards began staging the sick calls last week to protest the elimination of hazard pay bonuses they had been receiving since the 1968 riots.

The bonuses were absorbed by the 38-cent-an hour pay raises that will be reflected in Friday's paychecks.

Guards ended the protest Tuesday after Gov. John Gilligan ordered the Personnel Department to replace those who did not report for work and could not offer a legitimate excuse for being absent.

Ohio Firms Deny Antitrust Charges On Aircraft Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Ohio firms denied antitrust charges brought by the Justice Department Wednesday against them and 18 other manufacturers of airplanes, airplane parts and accessories.

"We believe that the charges... are completely unfounded in fact and in law," said Roy J. Benecchi, president of the aerospace group of Aercon, Inc., of Middletown.

A spokesman for the Good-year Aerospace Corp. in Akron said the plane has not produced aircraft, other than a few for experimental purposes, since the end of World War II.

The Justice Department's civil antitrust suit charged the companies with eliminating competition in research and development of patentable inventions relating to airplane production.

In addition to the 20 companies, the suit named as a defendant the Manufacturers Aircraft Association, Inc., of which the firms have been, or are, stockholders-members.

The complaint says a patent agreement entered into by the MAA and its members in 1928 continues in force at the present time and provides for the pooling and cross-licensing of all airplane patents under MAA members.

As a result of the agreement, the suit charges, competition among the defendants has been restricted and eliminated. The suit asks that the MAA be dissolved and that the patent pooling agreement be canceled.

Benecchi said the MAA was "established at the behest of the government, has been operating for more than 50 years, and has been reviewed by many agencies of the government."

He said the suit would have "little, if any, effect on Aercon."

John Donnelly, an Aercon vice president, said companies in the group pass on to each other developments in aircraft production, particularly in the safety area.

If each company held its own patents, he said, the price of aircraft development would be forced up.

He told of studies looking for any association between cats with cancer or leukemia and humans in that cat's "family" with such diseases.

There was no excess of such cancers among people who owned sick cats nor was there any excess cancer in people whose dogs came down with cancers, Schneider said.

Some cats have a virus for leukemia. Veterinarians are exposed to more scratches from sick cats than most people, and if a cat virus could be transmitted through scratches, then the animal doctors should show signs of it in their blood, as in having antibodies against the virus, he said.

Blood tests of more than 700 persons, mostly veterinarians, found only one man having a temporary and very likely falsely positive blood test for the presence of any virus, he said.

Schneider said the cat studies indicate leukemia is transmitted strictly from parent to offspring, not between brother and sister. This finding "strengthens the probability that the disease is not transmitted to man or other species" by cats, he said.

Social Security Answers

Q. I'm getting monthly social security retirement checks and working part-time. Last month I told the social security office that I expected to earn $1,700 this year. But now I've gotten a raise and can expect to make $2,100 this year. When should I tell social security about my higher income?

A. Immediately. Call or visit any social security office. The dollar amount of your social security checks this year depends on the total amount you earn. By immediately notifying social security of your raise, you can avoid the financial burden of having to refund an overpayment later.

Q. I never worked under social security but I get monthly social security checks as a widow. Will I be entitled to Medicare when I am 65?

A. Yes. You are eligible for Medicare at 65. Anyone who is entitled to social security retirement checks at 65 is also eligible for Medicare.

Q. I get monthly social security retirement benefits on my husband's record, even though we aren't living together anymore. If we get divorced, will I still get my checks?

A. If you and he were married 20 years or longer, you will continue to get monthly benefits on his work record after the divorce. You should report the divorce to any social security office when it becomes final.

Q. I was told that I would get social security credit of $160 per month for each month of my active military service from 1941 to 1944. However, I sent a post card for a record of my social security earnings and found my military time wasn't listed. Why was it left out?

A. Military service is not actually credited to your record until the time when you apply for social security benefits. When you apply, you will be asked for your discharge papers or other proof of military service. The people at the social security office will see that you get your military credits then.

Clearcutting Use Of Forests Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Interior public lands subcommittee Thursday recommended guidelines for the regulation of timber harvesting in federal forests with restrictions against the controversial practice of widespread clearcutting.

Clearcutting, the harvesting of timber in large blocks or strips instead of by selected individual trees, is opposed by many conservation groups.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, called a news conference to release a report asking the Agriculture Department's Forest Service and Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management to follow the suggested guidelines in permitting sales of timber from millions of acres of federal forests.

2 Americans Reported Slain In Viet Action

SAIGON (AP) — A Viet Cong booby trap exploded on a jungle trail 31 miles east of Saigon today, killing two men of a small American reconnaissance patrol and wounding four.

The patrol was from a company of the 3rd Brigade, 1st Air Cavalry Division, the only American combat unit in the Saigon region.

Officers in the field said the company was searching for enemy elements reported in the region.

A second fight was reported in the region a short time later, and field reports said another American was wounded. Enemy losses were not known.

The Nile stretches 4,145 miles from its most distant source, the tip of the Lukarara River in Rwanda.

Medic Says Cancer In Cats Not Transmitted To Humans

CLEARWATER BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Relax, you can't catch cancer from your cat, says Dr. Robert Schneider.

Schneider and his associates at a California laboratory are the only scientists in the world keeping track of tumors affecting household pets such as cats and dogs.

They cooperate with another laboratory which keeps tabs on cancers in humans so they can assess the chances of animals transmitting tumors to families with which they live.

About three years ago, a scientific study suggested humans might contract leukemia, a cancer of the blood, from cats suffering from a virus causing leukemia in the animals.

Ohio Pen Operations Near Normal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Operations at the Ohio Penitentiary were near normal today with prisoners back on work assignments and most shops running.

However, guards were continuing to work 12-hour shifts because of staff shortages resulting from the dismissal of 21 guards for participating in a sick-out.

Assistant Warden L. G. Ride-nour said it could be "some time" before the guards return to their regular eight-hour shifts.

In addition to the 21 guards fired, 135 face possible dismissal, suspension or loss of pay if a review being made by the state Personnel Department shows their absences were not legitimate.

Guards began staging the sick calls last week to protest the elimination of hazard pay bonuses they had been receiving since the 1968 riots.

The bonuses were absorbed by the 38-cent-an hour pay raises that will be reflected in Friday's paychecks.

Guards ended the protest Tuesday after Gov. John Gilligan ordered the Personnel Department to replace those who did not report for work and could not offer a legitimate excuse for being absent.

But, Schneider, a veterinarian, said his figures "show no evidence to incriminate cats in the occurrence of human leukemia." He spoke Wednesday to the closing session of an

Ohio Firms Deny Antitrust Charges On Aircraft Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Ohio firms denied antitrust charges brought by the Justice Department Wednesday against them and 18 other manufacturers of airplanes, airplane parts and accessories.

"We believe that the charges... are completely unfounded in fact and in law," said Roy J. Benecchi, president of the aerospace group of Aerona, Inc., of Middletown.

A spokesman for the Goodyear Aerospace Corp. in Akron said the plane has not produced aircraft, other than a few for experimental purposes, since the end of World War II.

The Justice Department's civil antitrust suit charged the companies with eliminating competition in research and development of patentable inventions relating to airplane production.

In addition to the 20 companies, the suit named as a defendant the Manufacturers Aircraft Association, Inc., of which the firms have been, or are, stockholders-members.

The complaint says a patent agreement entered into by the MAA and its members in 1928 continues in force at the present time and provides for the pooling and cross-licensing of all airplane patents under MAA members.

As a result of the agreement, the suit charges, competition among the defendants has been restricted and eliminated. The suit asks that the MAA be dissolved and that the patent pooling agreement be canceled.

Benecchi said the MAA was "established at the behest of the government, has been operating for more than 50 years, and has been reviewed by many agencies of the government."

He said the suit would have "little, if any, effect on Aerona."

John Donnelly, an Aerona vice president, said companies in the group pass on to each other developments in aircraft production, particularly in the safety area.

If each company held its own patents, he said, the price of aircraft development would be forced up.

Fostoria Officials Await Autolite Plant Outcome

FOSTORIA, Ohio (AP) — A U.S. Supreme Court ruling Wednesday that Ford Motor Co. must sell its Autolite spark plug plant here caught local officials by surprise, but most remained optimistic about the future.

"Everyone is shocked over the matter, but hopefully it won't be as bad as it sounds," said Carl Peters, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

"We should be all optimistic until we know definitely what is going to happen."

Duane Richardson, the plant manager, said the Supreme Court order would have little immediate effect because it gave Ford 18 months to sell the factory.

"The new owner could do most anything," Richardson said, "but I imagine a new owner would maintain the entire operation."

He said other small parts are made at the plant, but their production is integrated with the spark plug manufacturing section and probably could not be maintained separately.

He noted the court order requires Ford to buy half its spark plugs from the Ohio plant for the next five years.

The plant, employing 1,300 people, is one of three major employers in this northwestern Ohio city.

In its decision, the Supreme Court agreed with Chief U.S. District Judge Ralph M. Fregman of Detroit that Ford violated antitrust law when it purchased the plant in 1961 and took over the "Autolite" name. The court said the acquisition aggravated an already limited market.

"It just isn't fair to treat

Ford the way they're being treated while General Motors and other large corporations have been getting away with the same thing," said Fred Eichelberger, Fostoria city solicitor.

He said Congress "had better get busy and make this antitrust law and conglomerate laws apply uniformly."

Ford did not make spark plugs before it purchased the Fostoria plant and was the largest purchaser from independent suppliers. General Motors already had its own brand, AC spark plugs.

Mayor Dale Mills expressed shock at the court ruling.

"I was sure in my mind they'd decide the other way," he said.

Charlie Chaplin Rests Prior To Appearances

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — Comedian Charlie Chaplin was resting at a small hotel here before going to New York for a series of appearances early in April.

The silent film star, who will be 83 next month, flew in from London late Monday night accompanied by his wife Oona. He planned to do some sight-seeing later in the week.

Sneek-A-Peek

By Pickaway County Library Staff

Books for boys of junior high age are featured in this week's column. They are about sports, cars and airplanes.

Steve, after a tour of duty in Vietnam, returned to his old university to find the football team had "The Backfield Blues." He soon found the source of the trouble, but a solution was not easy to find. Jackson Scholz presents an entertaining glimpse of locker room politics in "The Backfield Blues."

Johnny Lee was seventeen, black and a good ball player. When he was offered a $450 contract to play in the minors, he grabbed it. But Proctor, Virginia, did not feel the same toward Negroes as the folks back home. In "Johnny Lee" the hero has to fight two battles — one on the diamond and the other in the streets. Donald Honig wrote this good sports book for juniors.

"Third and Goal" is about Rafael Cortez, a Chicano. He finally gets his parents' permission to join the Bombers football team. Then he must overcome his teammates' prejudices.

Irwin Stambler wrote "Great Moments in Stock Car Racing." It has great black and white photos of stock cars, which are not really stock cars. They are more expensive and they rate higher in performance than family cars.

"Scramble Cycle" by E. and R. S. Radlauer is written in the specific language of cycle racing. If you know about blue smoke, front forks and the pack, you'll love this story with its beautiful color photos. If it's all Greek to you, better bone up!

Other new car books, most of them very well illustrated, are: "Cars Against the Clock, the World Land Speed Record" by E. and R. S. Radlauer; "Road Racing in America" by Lyle Kenyon Engle; and "Behind the Wheel: Great Road Racing Drivers" by Robert B. Jackson. This last title contains sketches about Mario Andretti, Stirling Moss, Juan Fangio and Pedro Rodriguez.

To young people of the seventies, World War II is already ancient history. Many of them display an avid interest in it, and especially in the role of aircraft. Edward Jablonski has written "Wings of Fire," which is an illustrated history of the evolution of air power in the Second World War. This is a beautiful book, profusely illustrated and well written. There are color drawings of the most important aircraft of the Pacific Campaign. While this book is shelved in the Sneek-A-Peek Room, many adults will enjoy it.

Urge Review Of Federal Space Plans

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A scientist called Wednesday night for an independent review of the entire space program, saying new space expenditures are an expensive luxury this country cannot afford.

"This does not mean that there are not real values to a national space program," Dr. Ralph E. Lapp told a University of Toledo audience.

"We need to assess what we have spent in space and what we have gotten in return," said Lapp, a privately employed Washington nuclear physicist and student of space affairs.

Lapp said he and some other private scientists opposed to space shuttle system have conducted a study "finding little data to support NASA's need for such a super space system."

He did not identify the other scientists.

Lapp estimated that the space shuttle might cost twice as much as the $25 billion Apollo man-on-the-moon program.

He contended also that NASA has not made clear what the space shuttle's value would be to the space program.

"In addition to the $25 billion spent on sending men to the moon, NASA has spent $18 billion on other space activities during the past 10 years," Lapp said. "What has the taxpayer gotten for this money?"

Huntington's Disease Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An authority on Huntington's Disease, a fatal hereditary disorder of the nervous system, said today the disease is hard to spot in its early stages because it resembles Parkinson's disease.

Dr. Andre Barbeau of Montreal spoke at Ohio State University during the final session of a three-day symposium on Huntington's disease. More than 50 health professionals, doctors and technicians attended.

Barbeau said both Huntington's and Parkinson's diseases were characterized by trembling and rigidity. But he said Huntington symptoms can sometimes be relieved by use of the drug L-Dopa, while Parkinson symptoms will respond only to depletion of Dopamine in the brain.

Sneek-A-Peek

By Pickaway County Library Staff

Books for boys of junior high age are featured in this week's column. They are about sports, cars and airplanes.

Steve, after a tour of duty in Vietnam, returned to his old university to find the football team had "The Backfield Blues." He soon found the source of the trouble, but a solution was not easy to find. Jackson Scholz presents an entertaining glimpse of locker room politics in "The Backfield Blues."

Johnny Lee was seventeen, black and a good ball player. When he was offered a $450 contract to play in the minors, he grabbed it. But Proctor, Virginia, did not feel the same toward Negroes as the folks back home. In "Johnny Lee" the hero has to fight two battles — one on the diamond and the other in the streets. Donald Honig wrote this good sports book for juniors.

"Third and Goal" is about Rafael Cortez, a Chicano. He finally gets his parents' permission to join the Bombers football team. Then he must overcome his teammates' prejudices.

Irwin Stambler wrote "Great Moments in Stock Car Racing." It has great black and white photos of stock cars, which are not really stock cars. They are more expensive and they race higher in performance than family cars.

"Scramble Cycle" by E. and R. S. Radlauer is written in the specific language of cycle racing. If you know about blue smoke, front forks and the pack, you'll love this story with its beautiful color photos. If it's all Greek to you, better bone up!

Other new car books, most of them very well illustrated, are: "Cars Against the Clock, the World Land Speed Record" by E. and R. S. Radlauer; "Road Racing in America" by Lyle Kenyon Engle; and "Behind the Wheel: Great Road Racing Drivers" by Robert B. Jackson. This last title contains sketches about Mario Andretti, Stirling Moss, Juan Fangio and Pedro Rodriguez.

To young people of the seventies, World War II is already ancient history. Many of them display an avid interest in it, and especially in the role of aircraft. Edward Jablonski has written "Wings of Fire," which is an illustrated history of the evolution of air power in the Second World War. This is a beautiful book, profusely illustrated and well written. There are color drawings of the most important aircraft of the Pacific Campaign. While this book is shelved in the Sneek-A-Peek Room, many adults will enjoy it.

FOSTORIA, Ohio (AP) — A U.S. Supreme Court ruling Wednesday that Ford Motor Co. must sell its Autolite spark plug plant here caught local officials by surprise, but most remained optimistic about the future.

"Everyone is shocked over the matter, but hopefully it won't be as bad as it sounds," said Carl Peters, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

"We should be all optimistic until we know definitely what is going to happen."

Duane Richardson, the plant manager, said the Supreme Court order would have little immediate effect because it gave Ford 18 months to sell the factory.

"The new owner could do most anything," Richardson said, "but I imagine a new owner would maintain the entire operation."

Urge Review Of Federal Space Plans

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A scientist called Wednesday night for an independent review of the entire space program, saying new space expenditures are an expensive luxury this country cannot afford.

"This does not mean that there are not real values to a national space program," Dr. Ralph E. Lapp told a University of Toledo audience.

"We need to assess what we have spent in space and what we have gotten in return," said Lapp, a privately employed Washington nuclear physicist and student of space affairs.

Lapp said he and some other private scientists opposed to space shuttle system have conducted a study "finding little data to support NASA's need for such a super space system."

He did not identify the other scientists.

Lapp estimated that the space shuttle might cost twice as much as the $25 billion Apollo man-on-the-moon program.

He contended also that NASA has not made clear what the space shuttle's value would be to the space program.

"In addition to the $25 billion spent on sending men to the moon, NASA has spent $18 billion on other space activities during the past 10 years," Lapp said. "What has the taxpayer gotten for this money?"

Huntington's Disease Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An authority on Huntington's Disease, a fatal hereditary disorder of the nervous system, said today the disease is hard to spot in its early stages because it resembles Parkinson's disease.

Dr. Andre Barbeau of Montreal spoke at Ohio State University during the final session of a three-day symposium on Huntington's disease. More than 50 health professionals, doctors and technicians attended.

Barbeau said both Huntington's and Parkinson's diseases were characterized by trembling and rigidity. But he said Huntington's symptoms can sometimes be relieved by use of the drug L-Dopa, while Parkinson's symptoms will respond only to depletion of Dopamine in the brain.

He said other small parts are made at the plant, but their production is integrated with the spark plug manufacturing section and probably could not be maintained separately.

He noted the court order requires Ford to buy half its spark plugs from the Ohio plant for the next five years.

The plant, employing 1,300 people, is one of three major employers in this northwestern Ohio city.

In its decision, the Supreme Court agreed with Chief U.S. District Judge Ralph M. Freeman of Detroit that Ford violated antitrust law when it purchased the plant in 1961 and took over the "Autolite" name. The court said the acquisition aggravated an already limited market.

"It just isn't fair to treat

Ford the way they're being treated while General Motors and other large corporations have been getting away with the same thing," said Fred Echelbarger, Fostoria city solicitor.

He said Congress "had better get busy and make this anti-trust law and conglomerate laws apply uniformly."

Ford did not make spark plugs before it purchased the Fostoria plant and was the largest purchaser from independent suppliers. General Motors already had its own brand, AC spark plugs.

Ashbrook Fights Ouster In Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS Ind. (AP) — A test case of the Indiana law requiring 500 signatures from each congressional district of petitioners in order to enter the Indiana presidential primary may be filed in U.S. District Court here.

Robert E. Hughes, said Wednesday that Ohio Congressman John Ashbrook, who has been disqualified because he failed to get the required signatures in three districts, had given his approval to legal efforts.

"The Congressman has indicated he does want to proceed on it legally," said Hughes, chairman of the committee which sought to get the conservative critic of President Nixon on the Indiana May 2 Republican primary ballot.

Hughes said the test case probably would be filed in U.S. District Court, but details of the suit were being worked out in Washington by Ashbrook's staff and no final decision on how it would be handled legally had been made.

"If any action is going to be taken, it is going to have to be quite prompt," said Hughes.

Ashbrook sought to challenge President Nixon in the Hoosier election. Unless a court ruling puts his name on the ballot, the President will be unopposed in the GOP primary.

Sens. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace are entered in the Democratic presidential primary.

U.S. Denied Intervention In Pay Suit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Justice Department request to intervene in a suit seeking to force the state to make new employee pay raises retroactive to Dec. 26 was denied by the Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday.

But the high court agreed to let the department file a "friend of the court" brief and have attorneys present at proceedings.

The department sought a part in the suit on the contention that federal legislation setting up the Pay Board superceded state law.

U.S. Atty. William Milligan was not available for comment on the ruling. Assistant Atty. Gen. John Conroy, who represents the state Personnel Department, declined to comment.

The Pay Board agreed to allow state employee pay increases granted by the General Assembly, but effective March 17 instead of retroactive to Dec. 26 as the legislation provided.

The Ohio Civil Service Employees Association, in filing the suit, contended the federal government has no right to dictate to the state how much its employees shall be paid.

Muskie Finds Simple Slogan Not Enough To Win Votes

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) — "Trust Muskie" read the campaign posters in the union hall, but the candidate and his men know now it will take more than that theme and slogan to win the Democratic presidential nomination.

So Sen. Edmund S. Muskie is concentrating on specifics, trying to etch sharply his campaign proposals, and disputing the candidate he regards as his chief rival, as he hunts votes in Tuesday's Wisconsin presidential primary.

He spent a snowy spring Wednesday riding a bus on a campaign swing billed as an issues tour, talking about the Vietnam war, the economy, the environment, the farmer—and Hubert H. Humphrey.

In early campaigning, the Maine senator talked in more general terms of trust, truth and candor.

But there have been changes in style and strategy, lessons learned at considerable political expense to the Democrat who had ranked as front-runner for the nomination.

"There were some obvious deficiencies in the campaign, which I think have been cured," said John F. English, one of Muskie's chief strategists. "We're over some of the early problems."

English, however, wouldn't say what they were.

Dr. Noel Leathers Gets University Post

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Noel L. Leathers, 47, was approved Wednesday by the University of Akron's board of trustees to become the school's vice president for academic affairs on July 1.

Dr. Leathers, a Columbus native, has been dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Toledo since 1967.

As for Tuesday's primary, English said that Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace is the real sleeper in this whole thing. He said Wallace could cut into the Muskie vote.

The polls and the politicians generally agree that Muskie faces tough going.

The most recent survey, commissioned by the Wisconsin AFL-CIO, showed Sen. George McGovern in the lead in Wisconsin, Humphrey second and Muskie third.

How Weather Looks Today

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here is the Ohio weather summary from the National Weather Service:

Cooler and drier air moved into the state Wednesday night, bringing cloudiness and the chance of rain or snow late Friday and Saturday.

A low pressure system, moving northeastward from the Gulf of Mexico, was the villain responsible for temperature forecast in the upper 30s and low 40s Friday and ranging from the 20s to the 30s at night.

In general, temperatures averaging a few degrees below normal will continue over the weekend.

WEST CENTRAL, CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL, SOUTHWEST and SOUTHEAST — Colder tonight, lows in the upper 20s and low 30s Friday, increasing cloudiness with a chance of rain or snow by night, highs in the 40s. Probability of precipitation ear zero tonight and 30 per cent Friday.

Rupe Loses Court Bid For Freedom

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP) — Portage County Common Pleas Judge Edwin Jones has denied a request for shock probation for Jerry H. Rupe of Ravenna, convicted in connection with disorders on the Kent State University campus in May, 1970.

James Hogle Jr., who defended Rupe last November, made a motion Wednesday asking that Rupe be returned from the Mansfield Reformatory and be given probation.

Rupe, 24, was tried on four charges but found guilty of one in an indictment returned in connection with the burning of a ROTC building on the KSU campus on May 2, 1970.

Judge Jones sentenced Rupe to six months in the reformatory when a jury convicted him of interfering with a fireman. The term was to be served concurrently with a 10-to-20-year sentence on three narcotics charges.

The jury failed to reach a verdict on charges against Rupe of arson, first-degree riot and assaulting a fireman.

Shock probation is that given a defendant after he has served what is judged to be a sufficient portion of his sentence to get a taste of prison life.

Mount Union Bank Robbed Of $5,000

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Two masked gunmen robbed the Main Street branch of the Mount Union bank of $5,000 Wednesday.

Bank President Francis Henry said one man jumped over the counter and took money from two cash drawers while the other man, holding a gun in each hand, forced four employees and one customer to lie on the floor.

The robbers fled through the rear door after spending less than four minutes in the bank, Henry said.

Accused Navy Chaplain Says Wife-Swapping Ring Exists

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — After putting into court records a report that a wife-swapping ring existed at Cecil Field Naval Air Station, attorneys for Chaplain Andrew F. Jensen have rested their case in his courtmartial on a charge of misconduct by adultery.

Final prosecution rebuttal testimony is scheduled today. The jury of six officers is expected to begin deliberating the case late today or early Friday. The Navy commander faces a maximum penalty of two years in prison and dishonorable discharge.

Say Labor Department Violating Statutes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of national organizations said Tuesday the Labor Department is violating federal manpower-training laws by dropping a requirement that state employment agencies give priority to the neediest applicants.

"We are profoundly disturbed that at a time when the number of those dependent on welfare for subsistence has increased, the Department of Labor—in a radical departure from past practices—has taken steps to de-emphasize its services to the poor and to shift its resources to other population groups," the coalition said in a letter to Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson.

USE THE CLASSIFIEDS

Jensen, 43, wasn't allowed on Wednesday to testify to reports of wife-swapping which included Lora Gudbranson, 40, one of two Navy officer wives who accused him of adulterous relations. The other is Mary Ann Curran, 24.

The chaplain denied each of 21 love trysts alleged by the two women.

When Jensen started to unfold a report of wife-swapping, prosecutor Ralph B. Levy objected.

"A report from whom" re-

ried the military judge, Capt. Ben N. Cole of Charleston, S.C. "This is the confidential nature of it," defense attorney Jack R. Blackmon of Corpus Christi, Tex., replied. "We are not offering it for the truth of it. We are offering it to show motive."

The judge refused to allow the oral testimony but accepted the statement in the trial record for appeal purposes.

Newsman were permitted to copy the document labeled "offer of proof" but were advised by the judge not to give it too much credence.

It said Jensen would have testified, if allowed, "that in confidential counseling sessions with various individuals, he received information to the effect that Lora Gudbranson and others at Cecil Field were involved in a wife-swapping or 'swingers' group."

Accused Navy Chaplain Says Wife-Swapping Ring Exists

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — After putting into court records a report that a wife-swapping ring existed at Cecil Field Naval Air Station, attorneys for Chaplain Andrew F. Jensen have rested their case in his courtmartial on a charge of misconduct by adultery.

Final prosecution rebuttal testimony is scheduled today. The jury of six officers is expected to begin deliberating the case late today or early Friday.

The Navy commander faces a maximum penalty of two years in prison and dishonorable discharge.

Jensen, 43, wasn't allowed on Wednesday to testify to reports of wife-swapping which included Lora Gudbranson, 40, one of two Navy officer wives who accused him of adulterous relations. The other is Mary Ann Curran, 24.

The chaplain denied each of 21 love trysts alleged by the two women.

When Jensen started to unfold a report of wife-swapping, prosecutor Ralph B. Levy objected.

"A report from whom?" he asked.

Vanik Attacks 'Tax Giveaways'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Vanik says escalating revenue losses resulting from administration "tax giveaways" to business could compel higher individual income taxes next year.

The Ohio Democrat estimated that corporations will collect nearly $5 billion in tax refunds by June 30. Refunds were $3.5 billion in the last fiscal year, up from $2.2 billion a year earlier, he said.

"The revenue give-away act of 1971, the administration's accelerated asset depreciation range and the flood of tax-break decisions being machined out by the Treasury Department are depleting the treasury at a shocking rate," said Vanik, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee.

ried the military judge, Capt. Ben N. Cole of Charleston, S.C. "This is the confidential nature of it," defense attorney Jack R. Blackmon of Corpus Christi, Tex., replied. "We are not offering it for the truth of it. We are offering it to show motive."

The judge refused to allow the oral testimony but accepted the statement in the trial record for appeal purposes.

Newsman were permitted to copy the document labeled "offer of proof" but were advised by the judge not to go give it too much credence.

It said Jensen would have testified, if allowed, "that in confidential counseling sessions with various individuals, he received information to the effect that Lora Gudbranson and others at Cecil Field were involved in a wife-swapping or 'swingers' group."

Judgement Day Is Great Moment Of Truth

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, fourth in a five-part Easter series about the "Hope of Heaven," deals with the Last Judgment.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Now is the twilight time, a region of semi-day and semi-night. Some things are fairly clear, some utterly baffling. "For now we see in a mirror dimly." Surface lines of the terrain are faintly visible, with glimmerings here and there, but also shadowy, obscure, queer. It's hard to make out just what it's all about.

Then the "trumpet" sounds. The light breaks. It exposes every infinitesimal detail in absolute clarity. What once was vague and ambiguous becomes vividly explicit.

"Then I shall understand fully, even as I have been fully understood."

This, as the indirect clues are interpreted, is "judgment day."

In the perspective of faith, it is when temporality swerves into eternity, when all the centuries are gathered up into a lasting present, when the hidden is made plain and when every human finally understands precisely who he is. It is the great moment of truth.

An encounter "in the raw," Catholic philosopher Malachi Martin put it. It could be hard to bear. As T. S. Eliot once observed: "Man cannot stand too much reality."

Although a long succession of grisly medieval art, imaginative poetry, overdrawn preaching and presumptuous calculation has produced some wildly brutal popular impressions of the occasion, these have little to do with basic church convictions.

As a result, says Methodist theologian William A. Spurrer, church scholars "spend most of their time trying to make clear what they don't believe."

Basically, the judgment is conceived as a phase in which human beings are enabled to attain fully just what they intentionally have sought to be. It is when the exercise of the freedom given them in creation is accorded total realization.

As C. S. Lewis once depicted it in a play, it is when God, after beseeching a person's friendship throughout his early life, at last tells him, "Thy will be done."

He is allowed to become entirely and exactly what he himself purposely had devoted his life to becoming. His self-determination is brought to its apex. It could be, as theologians project it, devastating. On the other hand, it could be marvellously satisfying, finally to have all one's stumbling strivings toward identity given development to utmost capacity.

But each person himself sets the matrix, his chosen consummation. "It could be a reduction to smallness or it could be an elevation to greatness," says philosopher Paul Tillich. "It can mean an extreme poverty with respect to fulfilled potentials or it can also mean an extreme richness of them."

Although Scripture says God desires to redeem all men, they are endowed with a distinctive trait, free will, a self-evaluating, self-directing ability to mold their own lives. This is what makes them, unlike all other creatures, responsible beings. It's also what makes their outcome uncertain. It's an open question, a risk, both for humanity, and for God.

"It rests with us whether His purpose of good in creation is to be at least a partial failure," says British theologian John Austin Baker. "He has put Himself in our hands."

Without that uncertainty factor, there could be no possibility of genuinely mutual love at all whether on earth or in the hereafter, for love, to be love, always must be voluntary. "Man must do his own living, his own loving, his own deciding," says Catholic theologian Robert J. Farley. "God cannot live or love or decide for man because man has his own unique personhood."

This means that some people, in the last judgment, may have so ordered their lives as to reject its grace. It is not something, however, that happens to a man suddenly, like a bombshell, but rather something he has developed throughout his life and finally is brought to its fruition. It could be hell.

"This means that a person who chooses to walk in darkness will in the great future find himself in the outer darkness," says Dutch theologian Hendrikus Berkhof. "Hell is the consequences of God's respect for our humanity." So is heaven.

Either way, it means the completion of a person's own pattern. The occasion is called "the revealing," the "Day of our Lord." His "parousia" or "coming." "For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a cry of command, with the archangel's call, and with the sound of the trumpet of God," Scripture says.

"Each man's work will become manifest, for the Day will disclose it, for it will be revealed with fire." The result can be abundance, St. Paul adds, or withering loss.

Elsewhere in the Bible, there are various, suggestive images — of thunder, falling stars, archangels, the pit, a "lake of fire," dragons, graphic scenes to portray what, fundamentally, is beyond the human experience to express. All this is in keeping with the Hebrew understanding of the symbolic nature of language, but not so much with the modern technical mentality.

As a result subsequent literary flights, evangelistic overkill and slighting, nonchalant jokes about hell, usually derived from a subconscious fear of it, have combined to make the "last judgment" look like a savage, revengeful affair. The distortions, says Catholic theologian Jerome Stowell, have stemmed from "grotesque preaching, bad art and misguided piety."

This doesn't imply the occasion won't be piercingly serious. If there is not to be some balancing out of all the inequities, aberrations and abuses of the world, then it is, essentially, a pointless scramble without any moral rationality to it.

The Hebrew word for judgment, "shafat," means: "To establish the right order of things."

In the present existence, it is obvious that evil often overcomes goodness, that the ruthless crush the tender, that deceit sometimes blots out honesty, that the arrogant, greedy and powerful often dominate the compassionate, generous and weak. Unless this disorder is somehow, sometime, rectified, says Presbyterian scholar W. Burnet Eaton, then "there is not much sense to anything at all."

Easygoing sentimentality, however, tends to reject the idea of judgment, and sermons nowadays generally avoid the topic. "In a large proportion of Christian congregations today it is never mentioned from one year's end to other," says Anglican scholar Baker. Even most theology books bypass it quickly.

The attitude is similar to shallow friendships in which a person avoids dealing with another's faults which are hurting him, such as over-drinking, for the sake of comfortable relations. But such "good natured" indulgence is not real friendship. It is more painful to get involved in another's problems and shame, to shoulder them, but this is the way of love. And basically, everyone knows it.

With all the ambiguities in the world, with honor and integrity sometimes bringing only failure, with fighters for the right often losing and the innocent suffering, with so many things out of control and awry, people actually want them set straight. Despite their distaste for judgment, a more basic quality in them demands it for the sake of justice which is essential to love.

"In short, man must desire judgment," says Catholic theologian Romano Guardini.

It happens, Scripture emphasizes, within the context of God's preeminent characteristic, a boundless, self-giving, passionate love for humanity, offering pardon to the penitent and welcome to all those willing to accept it.

Whatever their sorrowing, unwanted guilt, these are transformed by God's lovingly enduring "the infinite pain it has caused Him," says theologian Baker. "He has taken it on Himself. He brings forgiveness achieved through his own suffering. The hands that hold us in existence are pierced with unimaginable nails."

While this is epitomized in the crucifixion, it is not considered confined to an episode but extended over all of time, a divine suffering for mankind's injustice and wrongs, but also the competence to overcome them, as manifested in the resurrection. He takes the wrong-doing and builds new life out of it if it is accepted.

But being pardoned is a moment of peril for man, who tends to deny his dependency, his basic helplessness. He assumes he can manage his own destiny. And at that point, the word of judgment divides.

"Yes, there is something to fear," says Pope Paul VI. Some people may have become so totally self-centered, wrapped in narrow self-esteem, that they cannot "accept the humiliation of facing the evil we have been and how much suffering has been needed to forgive us," Baker says. They may insist they're not to blame, not indebted, and reject the generosity of pardon.

On the other hand, a self-hating inability to forgive oneself, an assumption that it undermines one's own strength to accept forgiveness, may also bring rejection of it. Both cases, Baker says, are "prisoners of pride" and where pride "has obtained, a stranglehold, there can be no openness to truth."

Whatever the situation, judgment implies a penetrating, sweeping illumination of self, totally clarifying all one's fragility, illusions, inherent conflicts, disordered relationships and motivations, and also his faith, eagerness for truth, his repentance and hope.

The occasions "decides the specific meaning, the essence, of everything by revealing what it really was," says German theologian Wolfhart Pannenberg. "If we, in our anxiety and hope, contemplate this power of the future, we recognize both its breathtaking excitement and its invitation to trust."

Some Christians see damnation as extinction, the obliteration of a ruined life. Others see it as eternal desolating separation from the very source of one's life, from God's love. Scriptural passages can be interpreted either way.

Some doctrines, recognizing man's inevitable failings, see a gradual development, or purging, toward ultimate fulfillment. Some hold a "universalist" position that God, in desiring to save all men, will effect that purpose.

There also are distinctions made about a "particular judgment" at death and the general or "last judgment." But all this is essentially mystery. In the visionary book of Revelation, when some secrets of the last things were about to be written down, a voice cried out: "Seal up what the seven thunders have said, and do not write it down."

Jesus, in a parable describing the judgment, told of a king who would call into an everlasting kingdom all those who had fed the hungry, clothed the naked, welcomed the stranger, visited the sick and the imprisoned.

"As you did it to one of the least of these my brethren," he said, "you did it to me."

Wyoming Rancher Turns To Sheepherding Business

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Wyoming rancher John Allemand is doing what few ranchers would dare to even think about — herding 3,500 sheep from Fort Collins to pasture near Medicine Bow, Wyo.

Allemand left the Fort Collins area two weeks ago, herding his flock along Highway 287 to Laramie, Wyo.

Allemand's wife Penny — who doubles as cook — and two other herders are helping manage the drive. He estimates the herd will reach summer pasture at Laramie Plains, 20 miles north of Medicine Bow, about April 1.

Many of Allemand's fellow ranchers thought he was crazy to buy 5,200 ewes and lambs last fall. The wool market has been depressed for 25 years, and the slaughter lamb market fell to a five-year low of 23 cents a pound last year.

But consumer demand has pushed choice lamb prices to 39 cents a pound, and Allemand says, "People said I was crazy, but now a lot of those same people would like to buy those sheep from me."

Allemand trucked his sheep to Fort Collins last November when the grass in Wyoming became too short for grazing. He expects to save money by driving the herd and to get a month's free pasture off the roadsides as well.

McDowell Fine; Stops Cubs Cold

By The Associated Press
Sudden Sam McDowell says he is in his best shape in four years. That means the San Francisco Giants may win the National League pennant for the first time in a decade.
The 29-year-old star southpaw, traded to the Giants by the Cleveland Indians, yielded only five hits in the eight innings he pitched Wednesday against the Chicago Cubs in exhibition baseball.
"Really, I'm in good shape, the best in three or four years," McDowell said after he had received credit for an 8-6 victory. "I could have pitched an extra two or three innings." Ken Henderson, who has taken over the No. 3 batting slot from Willie Mays, had four RBIs on a home run and a three-run double.

With the opening of the season only six days away on April 5, there were reports that the players had modified their pension demands and eased the threat of a strike.
Commissioner Bowie Kuhn expressed optimism that a strike would be avoided.
"One thing I'm happy about in the midst of this difficulty is that the clubs and the players have been meeting regularly to see if they can find a solution," Kuhn said.

In another off-field development, big Frank Howard reportedly signed with the Texas Rangers for the same salary he received last year, an estimated $120,000. The slugging first baseman, outfielder said he would begin workouts today.
Jim Lonborg, another pitcher on the comeback trail, helped the Milwaukee Brewers win their seventh in eight starts. The former Red Sox ace was touched for only four hits in the seven innings he worked against Cleveland in a 5-1 triumph.

Catcher Johnny Bench drove in five RBIs on two homers in leading Cincinnati over Philadelphia 12-6 and Rusty Torres, a rookie outfielder, blasted a two-run ninth inning homer to give the New York Yankees a 5-4 squeaker over the world champion Baltimore Orioles.
Hoyt Wilhelm, the 48-year-old sinkerball reliever, retired the last six men he faced as Los Angeles tripped Minnesota 6-2 and solidified his spot on the Dodger staff.
Paul Schaaf led Kansas City over Detroit 6-2 with a three-run homer and two doubles, but the Royals suffered a blow in the loss of shortstop Fred Patek. Patek, who hasn't played since March 20 because of a groin injury, was placed on the disabled list.

Jerry Reuss pitched 6 1/3 innings in leading St. Louis to a 3-0 shutout over the New York Mets. Pete Broberg, Jim Panther and Paul Lindblad combined for a three-hitter as Texas blanked Atlanta 6-0.
Art Kusner's two-run double in the fifth and Clyde Wright's impressive pitching gave California 2-1 triumph over San Diego. Elsewhere Boston beat Houston 5-3.

Robinson Key Factor In Dodgers' Title Bid

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Can Frank Robinson make up the difference of one game that left the Los Angeles Dodgers second best to the San Francisco Giants in the National League's West Division pennant chase?
You'd better believe he can.
The Dodgers, who came so very close to catching the fading Giants in the final days of the 1971 season, figure they have the horses to overtake San Francisco this time out. And what's more, some other clubs may pass the Giants to.

LA did some prudent winter shopping, prying Robinson and reliever Pete Richert away from Baltimore for four young prospects. Football Coach George Allen said "The future is now," and the Dodgers obviously believe it.
The Dodgers also came up with Tommy John, a quality left-hander, to add to their pitching rotation. Pitching has always been LA's strong suit and John joins a staff headed by Al Downing, Don Sutton, Claude Osteen and Bill Singer.
With Robinson, Willie Davis and Wes Parker to head the offense, the Dodgers seem solid. Certainly one game better than they were a year ago.

Consider, for example, that of the top four earned run averages in the National League last season, three now work for the Astros. Houston already had No. 3 Don Wilson and No. 4 Ken Forsch. Then they came up with No. 2 Dave Roberts from San Diego in a winter swap.
Roberts' 2.10 ERA was second only to Tom Seaver of the Mets last year and he is considered one of the best young arms in baseball.
The Astros also made an eight-player swap with Cincinnati which brings slugger Lee May and second baseman Tommy Helms to Houston. May's 39 homers last year gives the Astros a power man to go with Jimmy Wynn.

San Francisco came up with Sudden Sam McDowell in a winter deal with Cleveland but it cost them Gaylord Perry. That means they're still a little thin in pitching and that deficiency should shove them down the West ladder.
Age could start creeping up on the Giants too. Ace pitcher Juan Marichal is 33. Injunctive Willie McCovey is 34 and, of course, Willie Mays will be celebrating his 41st birthday on May 6.
Bobby Bonds and Ken Henderson give the Giants two highly capable outfielders, offensively and defensively, but the picture seems bleak unless San Francisco can find a fountain of youth and some more pitchers.

Cincinnati has decided to switch images, foregoing sock for speed. That's why the Reds went after second baseman Joe Morgan during the winter. But they need a comeback from Bobby Tolan, who may have lost a step or two because of his Achilles tendon operation.
Speaking of comebacks, the Reds are depending on a big one by All Star catcher Johnny Bench, who slipped badly last year. Peppery Pete Rose and Tony Perez, switching from third base to first this year, head the offense with Bench.

The Reds are somewhat thin on infielders with Woody Woodward retired, and the pitching is questionable with much riding on recoveries by Wayne Simpson and Jim Merritt, who suffered through nightmarish seasons in 1971.
Hank Aaron starts his final countdown on the road toward Babe Ruth's home run record and that should add zest to what could become an otherwise bleak season for the Braves.

Ralph Garr's speed and the power potential of rookie of the year Earl Williams and Darrell Evans give Atlanta some promise but the pitching doesn't seem solid enough after knuckler Phil Niekro.
San Diego has a quality pitcher in Clay Kirby and a quality hitter in Nate Colbert, but not enough quality in the other positions to make any kind of a dent.
Torre, Lou Brock, Matty Alou and Ted Simmons give St. Louis a well-rounded attack blending speed and power. Rick Wise, acquired from Philadelphia in an even-up swap for Steve Carlton, fits in well with Bob Gibson and Reggie Cleveland and the Cards seem capable of making life interesting for Pittsburgh's loaded Pirates.

Chicago changed some faces, picking up outfielders Rick Monday and Jose Cardenal over the winter as well as journeyman relief pitcher Steve Hamilton.
The most important new Cub, however, may be Coach Hank Aguirre, designated as Manager Leo Durocher's liaison with press and players. If Joe Pepitone, Ron Santo and Billy Williams can supply the runs and Milt Pappas, Fergy Jenkins and Bill Hands the pitching, the Cubs could make progress. That's assuming, of

Daytonian Steve Yeager Does Well With Dodgers

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The top rookie in the Los Angeles Dodgers' camp this year is nicknamed "Raw Meat," says he wouldn't mind being a third-stringer and is looking forward to buying a pair of contact lenses when he makes the majors.
Steve Yeager, a 23-year-old catcher, came by his nickname in his first major league exhibition game this spring.

The Baltimore Orioles' Paul Blair came charging toward home plate as a throw reached Yeager. The rookie stood his ground in a crunching collision and tagged Blair. In appreciation, Chris Cannizzaro, the Dodgers' No. 2 catcher, pinned the "Raw Meat" label on Yeager.

The youngster from Dayton, Ohio continued his battle with Joe Ferguson, a part-timer with Los Angeles last season, for the third-string job behind Duke Sims and Cannizzaro as the Dodgers faced the Chicago Cubs here today.
Though duties of a No. 3 catcher usually consist of warming up pitchers and waiting for someone to get hurt or tired, Yeager's looking forward to it hopefully.
"I wouldn't mind sitting on the bench and playing only a little," he says. "I've been a backup catcher four of the five years I've played."

He's one of the most popular players in the field. He's pressed for autographs and greeted with calls of "There's Bud Allin," when he appears on the course.
"It's nice, of course, and I enjoy it," he said, but wondered aloud if his victory last year might not have hurt him.

"In my case, people are thinking mine was a kind of a fluke. I don't feel I know everything there is to know, but I do think I can win again."
Allin, however, has been in a slump—he's missed the cut in three of four tournaments—since finishing fourth in the rich Jackie Gleason earlier this year. He has about $17,000 in winnings.
"I'm not playing that well right now, but my attitude is good. It'll come," he said.

Squires Beat Pros, 123-99; Clinch 2nd

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It took the Virginia Squires their entire 84-game schedule to clinch second place in the American Basketball Association's East Division.
"Hopefully, we have found the right togetherness to go into the playoffs with," Virginia Coach Al Bianchi said after his team defeated Memphis 123-99 Wednesday night.

"We finally started playing defense, plus we had movement on offense. It came at a most proper time since we had to have this one to finish second," he said.
The Squires were an up-and-down club during the season, once leading New York by 8½ games, but slipping to just a half-game lead going into the Memphis contest.

The Squires suffered the loss of Charlie Scott to Phoenix of the National Basketball Association, but still held on to their position as the ABA season came to an end. Scott was the highest scoring in the ABA at the time of his departure.
Virginia led at halftime 66-54 but rolled up a heavy lead in the third quarter, facing no challenge from the Pros.
Bernie Williams paced the Squires with 32 points and teammate Julius Erving scored 24. Randy Denton had 24 for Memphis.

In other ABA games, Indiana topped Pittsburgh 123-113, Kentucky topped the Floridians 117-109 and Utah beat Denver 112-109.

Rising Sky Wins Latonia Feature

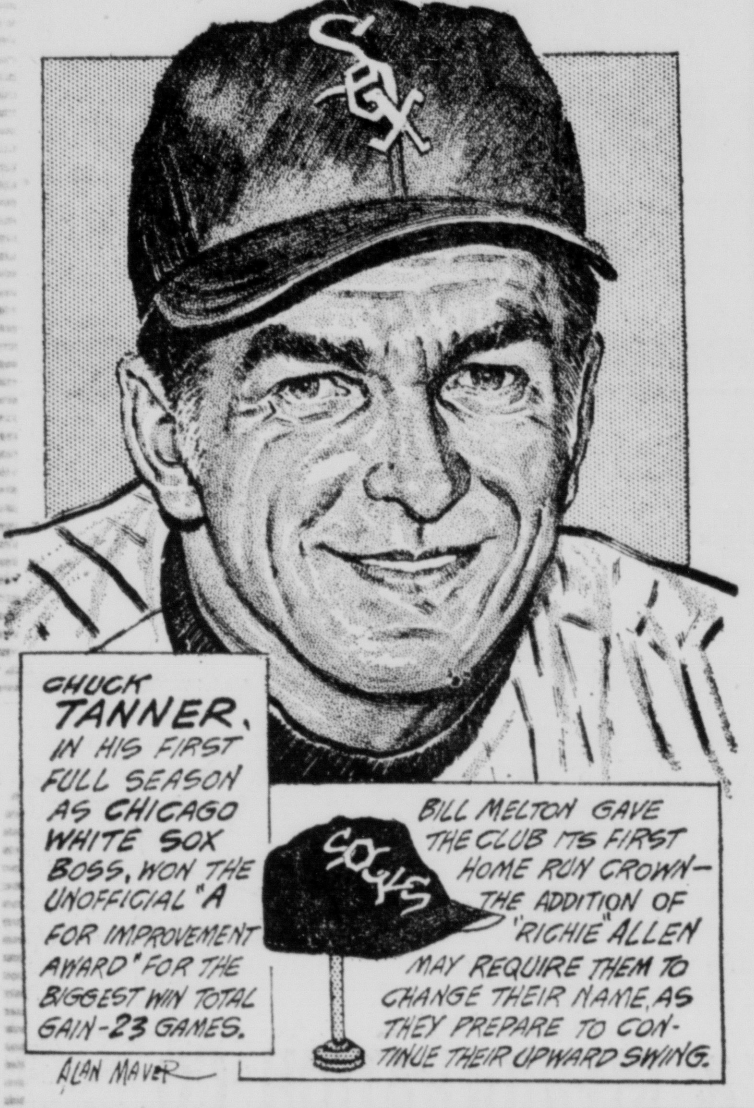

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Rising Sky trailed at fourth until the top of the stretch then won the featured $3,700 eighth race at Latonia by a length, covering the six furlongs in 1:13 1-5.

The winner paid $17.20, $9.40 and $5.00. Mellow Duc, who led most of the way, paid $7.40 and $4.60 for second, and McCollough's Leap, third, $2.60. Mome's Babe and Triple Option, 10-6, paid a large $744.60 in the daily double.

The crowd of 3,245 wagered $342,824.
Record Perfecta Seen At Lebanon Raceway
LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — A record $1,668.60 perfecta in the ninth trotting race was recorded at Lebanon Raceway Wednesday night.

The first two finishers were 7-8, Alwin Scott and Ones Pride.
Mapledale Knight won the featured eighth pace mile in 2:09.3-5 and paid $6.40 and $3.80. McDiller Time was second at $6.40 and $3.70, and Rushing Time, third, $4.20.
Riverside Willie and Ju K combined 5-2 in the daily double for $42.20.

Circleville Golf Squad Opens At Chillicothe

Three returning lettermen head the 13 candidates seeking positions on the Circleville golf team which opens the season today at Chillicothe.

Back from last year's squad are seniors Bob Downey and Dave Grigg who have been showing steady improvement and should have a good year.
Also returning to the Tiger squad is junior Greg Williams who was the most valuable player on last year's squad and will probably be number one man on the team.

Seniors making a bid for a berth on the squad are Mark Davey, Mike Hamrick, Barry Painter and Dave Winner.
JUNIOR candidates are Mike Cairns, J. C. Timberlake and Ken Yamarick.
Tom Hamilton, Terry Spellacy and Tim Wagner are sophomores who have shown a lot of promise and Coach Steve Brudzinski feels they will be pushing the upper classmen before the season is over.

Circleville suffered a setback last week when junior Gary Beck, who was coming along in fine shape, moved to Pittsburgh.
The Tiger golfers have never been one to seek an easy schedule and this year is no different as they encounter some of the top AAA competition in the area.

"We have had two weeks of indoor practice and one week on the course," Coach Brudzinski stated, "and our boys are really battling for spots in our opening match."
Coach Brudzinski feels the South Central Ohio League will be strong with Hillsboro and Washington C. H. the teams to beat.
HERE is the Circleville schedule:

Reds Throttle Phillies, 12-6; Player Hurt

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds moved on to St. Petersburg, Fla. today for a night game with the New York Mets after demonstrating their best hitting effort of the spring, rattling the Philadelphia Phillies 12-6 Wednesday.

Cincinnati cranked out 18 hits, including two home runs by catcher Johnny Bench who had three hits. Dave Concepcion, at short, tagged Philly pitching for a single, triple and a homer, and Tony Perez also homered.

"I just hope I have 30 days like that his year," Bench said. "It's too bad, though, that in a week I'll be hitting .000 again. (His spring average is .385). That's when it all starts for real."
"Davey has just improved as a player," manager Sparky Anderson said of Concepcion's performance. "His hand, which had to be bothering him all last year, isn't a problem any more, and that's got to make him a better hitter."

An otherwise gleeful performance was marred in the ninth inning when Philly outfielder Mike Anderson took a Clay Carroll fast ball in the left ear and was carried bleeding from the field.
He was taken to a hospital for treatment of the cut ear.

"The funny thing . . . well, not funny . . ." said Bench, "is that he always wears an ear flap when he hits. This time he didn't wear it. I don't know why."
"We were trying to get Clay to throw hard. It just happened," said Bench. "He threw hard and it got away. Anderson had to lose sight of the ball. A pitch right at your head is the easiest to get out of the way of, but he didn't move."

"Maybe he was looking for a breaking ball. I don't know," said Carroll later, adding that it happened so fast he did not have time to warn the batter.

Robinson Key Factor In Dodgers' Title Bid

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Can Frank Robinson make up the difference of one game that left the Los Angeles Dodgers second best to the San Francisco Giants in the National League's West Division pennant chase? You'd better believe he can.

The Dodgers, who came so very close to catching the fading Giants in the final days of the 1971 season, figure they have the horses to overtake San Francisco this time out. And what's more, some other clubs may pass the Giants to.

With Robinson, Willie Davis and Wes Parker to head the offense, the Dodgers seem solid. Certainly one game better than they were a year ago.

In the East, Pittsburgh's biggest problem seems to be the old rule about only being allowed to play nine guys at a time. They have too many good ones to limit themselves to nine.

The Pirates won the world championship last year with a team that doesn't seem to have any weaknesses. And new Manager Bill Virdon has a fistful of talented youngsters to add to the cast.

Willie Stargell, Roberto Clemente, Bob Robertson and Richie Hebner produce the Pirate runs with plenty of pitching available from Series hero Steve Blass, Nellie Briles, Dock Ellis and others.

Pittsburgh sat out infielder Rennie Stennett for the Series and this young man only batted .353 in 50 games. Then there is rookie outfielder Richie Zisk, who was the training camp standout after a .290 season in the International League last year. But where do you fit them in this championship club?

Behind the Dodgers in the West, Houston seems strongest with several new faces to juice up the attack. San Francisco, a year older, may be due to slip some, perhaps to third. Cincinnati's Big Red Machine still has some kinks to work out while Atlanta and San Diego don't seem likely to cause more than a few ripples.

Joe Torre will have to go some to match his batting championship .383 season for St. Louis but he'll do enough to keep the Cardinals in contention.

The revamped Cubs should edge out New York's light-hitting Mets for third place with Montreal and Philadelphia bringing up the rear.

Houston may very well be the most improved team in baseball this season. And the Astros could overtake the Dodgers if the summer heat wears down Robinson, who'll be 37 in August.

Consider, for example, that of the top four earned run averages in the National League last season, three now work for the Astros. Houston already had No. 3 Don Wilson and No. 4 Ken Forsch. Then they came up with No. 2 Dave Roberts from San Diego in a winter swap.

The Baltimore Orioles' Paul Blair came charging toward Yeager. The rookie stood his ground in a crunching collision and tagged Blair. In appreciation, Chris Cannizzaro, the Dodgers' No. 2 catcher, pinned the "Raw Meat" label on Yeager.

The youngster from Dayton, Ohio continued his battle with Joe Ferguson, a part-timer with Los Angeles last season, for the third-string job behind Duke Sims and Cannizzaro as the Dodgers faced the Chicago Cubs here today.

Though duties of a No. 3 catcher usually consist of warming up pitchers and waiting for someone to get hurt or tired, Yeager's looking forward to it hopefully.

"I wouldn't mind sitting on the bench and playing only a little," he says. "I've been a backup catcher four of the five years I've played."

"I was behind Joe Ferguson at Albuquerque in 1970, behind Sergio Robles at Bakersfield in '69 and behind a guy named Tom Mitchell before that."

He's been a reserve because of hitting problems that made it look doubtful that he'd ever get out of the minors a couple of years ago, when he hit in the .150 range in Class A while hampered by injuries.

But he improved to .278 and .274 the last two seasons here in Class AA, and with the Dodgers' expected hitting prowess this year, they may decide Yeager's glove is more useful than Ferguson's bat.

Cannizzaro, himself a top defensive catcher, says, "Yeager is as outstanding a young catcher as I've seen."

Squires Beat Pros, 123-99; Clinch 2nd
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It took the Virginia Squires their entire 84-game schedule to clinch second place in the American Basketball Association's East Division.

"Hopefully, we have found the right together to go into the playoffs with," Virginia Coach Al Bianchi said after his team defeated Memphis 123-99 Wednesday night.

"We finally started playing defense, plus we had movement on offense. It came at a most proper time since we had to have this one to finish second," he said.

The Squires were an up-and-down club during the season, once leading New York by 8 1/2 games, but slipping to just a half-game lead going into the Memphis contest.

The Squires suffered the loss of Charlie Scott to Phoenix of the National Basketball Association, but still held on to their position as the ABA season came to an end. Scott was the highest scoring in the ABA at the time of his departure.

Virginia led at halftime 66-54 but rolled up a heavy lead in the third quarter, facing no challenge from the Pros.

Bernie Williams paced the Squires with 32 points and teammate Julius Erving scored 24. Randy Denton had 24 for Memphis.

In other ABA games, Indiana topped Pittsburgh 128-113, Kentucky topped the Floridians 117-109 and Utah beat Denver 112-109.

Reds Throttle Phillies, 12-6; Player Hurt
CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds moved on to St. Petersburg, Fla. today for a night game with the New York Mets after demonstrating their best hitting effort of the spring, rattling the Philadelphia Phillies 12-6 Wednesday.

Cincinnati cranked out 18 hits, including two home runs by catcher Johnny Bench who had three hits. Dave Concepcion, at short, tagged Philly pitching for a single, triple and a homer, and Tony Perez also homered.

"I just hope I have 30 days like that this year," Bench said. "It's too bad, though, that in a week I'll be hitting .000 again. (His spring average is .385). That's when it all starts for real."

"Davey has just improved as a player," manager Sparky Anderson said of Concepcion's performance. "His hand, which had to be bothering him all last year, isn't a problem any more, and that's got to make him a better hitter."

An otherwise gleeful performance was marred in the ninth inning when Philly outfielder Mike Anderson took a Clay Carroll fast ball in the left ear and was carried bleeding from the field.

He was taken to a hospital for treatment of the cut ear.

"The funny thing . . . well, not funny . . ." said Bench, "is that he always wears an ear flap when he hits. This time he didn't wear it. I don't know why."

"We were trying to get Clay to throw hard. It just happened," said Bench. "He threw hard and it got away. Anderson had to lose sight of the ball. A pitch right at your head is the easiest to get out of the way of, but he didn't move."

"Maybe he was looking for a breaking ball. I don't know," said Carroll later, adding that it happened so fast he did not have time to warn the batter.

The baby is due in about a week; the girl will not be 18 and free to marry without her

Celtics Top Atlanta; Win 126-108

BOSTON (AP) — "It's been a long time coming," Coach Tommy Heinsohn said after the Boston Celtics returned to the National Basketball Association's playoffs for the first time in three years Wednesday night. They did it in true Celtics fashion, calling on a team effort in racehorse style to stampee the Atlanta Hawks, 126-108.

"That's what we've been looking for," Heinsohn said of the Celtics performance in the opener of the NBA first round best-of-seven eastern conference playoffs.

To be sure, it was only an opener and only one victory, but it was a first step and it was taken in the fashion so common here only a few years ago when players Heinsohn, Bill Russell and Bob Cousy directed the Celtics to 11 titles in 13 years.

They accomplished the victory mostly with their patented fast break, spurring in each of the last three quarters to first overtake the fast-starting Hawks and then clinch the 1-0 playoff advantage.

In Western Conference play-off action, the Los Angeles Lakers seek to extend their 1-0 lead at home tonight against the Chicago Bulls, while the Milwaukee Bucks, down 0-1 to the Golden State Warriors following an upset Tuesday, try to tie up their best-of-seven series at Milwaukee.

Tribe Loses To Brewers In Dual Tilt

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians began winding down their exhibition season today and pointing eastward toward their April 7 regular season opener at Milwaukee.

The Tucson training camp is being closed as the Indians head for Mesa, Ariz., for a game against Oakland.

The Tribe suffered a double defeat from Milwaukee in exhibitions Wednesday. The Brewers won the regular game at Tempe 5-1 and their B squad captured a 4-2 decision in the other game.

Relief pitchers Jim "Mudcat" Grant and Chuck Machedahl, battling for one of the two remaining berths on the 25-man roster, both performed in the regular game.

Grant worked the seventh inning and gave up two runs on a double, two singles and another double.

Machedahl pitched the final two innings and yielded another run in the eighth on a walk and double.

Milt Wilcox listed as the Tribe's No. 2 starting pitcher worked the first three innings of the game and gave up three hits including a home run by Joe Lahoud, and two runs.

Wilcox was hit in the right chest by a line drive off the bat of Rick Auerbach in the second inning and was replaced after the third for ice treatment of the bruise.

Chris Chambliss hit a 425-foot home run in the fourth inning for the Indians, but was later hit on the left foot by an errant curve ball.

The Mets hope they've solved their long-standing third base problem with the acquisition of veteran Jim Fregosi. But Fregosi, who never played third before, missed most of spring training with a broken thumb and could have a problem adjusting to the new position.

New York still lacks punch though and the burden of tight games could wear down the Seaver-led pitching staff. Jerry Koosman remains a question mark and relief ace Danny Friesella has arm problems, too.

Cleon Jones and Tommie Agee will produce some runs but not enough to keep the Mets in contention.

Bill Stoneman and Carl Morton head Montreal's pitching staff and Rusty Staub, Bob Bailey and Ron Fairly will get the Expos their share of runs. But there are too many gaps in the Montreal picture for the Expos to make a great deal of progress.

Philadelphia came up with a quality pitcher in Carlton but it cost the Phillies a quality pitcher in Wise. The Phillies will depend on some new faces like Greg Luzinski, who had 36 homers in the Pacific Coast League last year, to add zip to the offense. But that offense needs an awful lot of zip.

Durbin Sets Record In Bowling Tourney

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Durbin rolled a spectacular 250 average and shattered the world record for 16 games Wednesday to take the opening round lead in the PBA $125,000 Tournament of Champions.

"I've got a good shot and the pins are just falling," the affable 30-year-old right-hander from Chagrin Falls, Ohio, said after the two eight-game sets.

Durbin's total of 4,006 sticks topped by 80 pins the world record set three years ago by Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill.

Cincinnati Swords Clinch Playoff Berth

All the scoring came in the first period, with the winning goal coming at 9:35.

Beulah Park Opens Spring Thoroughbred Meet Saturday

Beulah Park opens its 49th spring thoroughbred meeting Saturday, with every indication it will be one of the most successful in the Grove City oval's history.

Even before racing secretary Charles W. Smith arrived to assume his duties March 20 most of the course's 1,034 stalls had been committed to over 110 thoroughbred conditioners. At least 60 other trainers are expected to ship in their stalwarts for various events throughout the 31-day meeting which closes May 6.

General manager Robert E. Houser announced that daily purses would average $20,000 for the meet and on Wednesday and Saturdays — the premium stakes days, well in excess of that figure.

Houser also disclosed that a new jockey's quarters had been built which is expected to house such distaff riders as Mary Bacon, Cheryl White, Paula Herber and Pinky Smith.

THE Beulah jockey colony which usually totals near 75 will have many Beulah veterans returning, including Ralph Borgemenko who captured first place in jockey standings at the '71 spring meet, and Rod Madrigal, who took top rider honors last fall. Other reinsmen include, Frank Licata, Joe McIntosh, Alan Rogers, Mark Tennenbaum, Harold Welch, John Pagano, and Vernon Bush. Jockeys who will be making spot appearances at Beulah will be Tommy Meyers, Mike Manganello, Eric Guerin, Eddie Snell, Roy Cave and Danny Weiler, and Charlie Burr.

In trainer ranks, W. J. Danner, first in thoroughbred tutor standings last spring with 16 wins, has 20 head in the Beulah barns in an effort to repeat his title, while George J. Schatz, the leading autumn saddlemaster, is boarding 13 at the Grove City course.

The ladies are also represented in the conditioner lists by Sandra Nowacki daughter of Columbus sportsmen Carl Nowacki, and Carol Wolfram, who will be saddling among others, Marshall Mac's Johnathan Swift, a six-year-old gelding who posted an impressive 6-6-4 last season.

Among the many thoroughbreds back to do battle at Beulah this spring are Lloyd F. Austin's Federal Hillson, winner of three last fall, trained by Kenny Carneal, Peter Urban's Pencil Copy, winner of the '71 Dayton Handicap, saddled by R. J. Flinchum, and Snow Face Pat, a four-year-old, who captured the City of Columbus Handicap during the '71 spring meeting, conditioned by Dave Hall.

The distance dynamo Duke Blitz is included in the stable of trainer Bill Lape. The Duke, 7-2-6 in 25 starts last year, rode to the winner's circle in two of the three Beulah Marathon events in October.

IN addition to new jockey's quarters Beulah is using new tote equipment this year, and three-year-olds and up at 5 1/2 furlongs, with a full field of twelve expected to contest the issue.

Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, three-fifths of the members elected to each house concurring therein, that there shall be submitted to the electors of the state in the manner prescribed by law at a special election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, 1972, a proposal to amend sections 4, 6, 7, 9, 11, 14, 16, and 31 of Article III, and to repeal sections 4, 6, 7, 9, 11, 14, 16, and 31 of Article III, and section 22 of Article IV of the Constitution of Ohio to read as follows:

ARTICLE II

Section 4. No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he was elected, unless during such term he resigns therefrom, hold any public office under the United States, or this state, or a political subdivision thereof; but this provision does not extend to officers of a political party, notaries public, or officers of the militia or of the United States armed forces.

No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he was elected, or for one year thereafter, be appointed to a public office under this state, which office was created or the compensation of which was increased, during the term for which he was elected.

Section 6. Each House shall be judge of the election, returns, and qualifications of its own members. A majority of all the members elected to each House shall be a quorum to do business; but a lesser number may adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties, as shall be prescribed by law.

Each House may punish its members for misconduct in conduct, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected thereto, expel a member, but not the second time for the same cause.

Each House has all powers necessary to provide for its safety and the execution of its business, and to obtain, through committees or otherwise, information affecting legislative action pending before it, in any manner, on any subject, in any place, or in any manner, or with reference to any alleged breach of its privileges or misconduct of its members, and to that end to enforce the attendance and testimony of witnesses, and the production of books and papers.

Each House shall choose its own officers, including a presiding officer, to be elected from its membership, who shall be designated in the Senate as president of the Senate and in the House of Representatives as speaker of the House of Representatives.

Each house shall determine its own rules of proceeding.

Section 8. Each general assembly shall convene in first regular session on the first Monday of January in the odd-numbered year, or on the succeeding day if the first Monday of January is a legal holiday, and on the same date of the following year. Either the governor, or the presiding officers of the general assembly acting jointly, may convene the general assembly in special session by a proclamation, which may limit the purpose of the session.

Section 9. Each House shall keep a correct journal of its proceedings, which shall be published at the desire of any two members, the yeas and nays shall be entered upon the journal, and on the passage of every bill, in either House, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and entered upon the journal.

Section 11. A vacancy in the Senate or in the House of Representatives for any cause, including the failure of a member to qualify for office, shall be filled by election by the members of the Senate or the members of the House of Representatives, as the case may be, who are affiliated with the same political party as the person last elected by the electors, or if that party has become vacant, a vacancy occurring before or during the first twenty months of a senatorial term shall be filled temporarily by election as provided in this section, for only that portion of the term which would expire on the next day of December following the next general election occurring in an even-numbered year, after the vacancy occurs, at which election the seat shall be filled by the electors as provided by law for the remaining unexpired portion of the term, the member-elect so chosen to take office on the first day in January next following such election. No person shall be elected to fill a vacancy in the Senate or House of Representatives, as the case may be, unless he meets the qualifications set forth in this Constitution and the laws of this state for the seat in which the vacancy occurred, and the provisions of section 27, Article II of this Constitution, shall apply to the election, while the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, is in session, with the taking of the yeas and nays of the members of the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, shall be entered upon the journal, and on the passage of every bill, in either House, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and entered upon the journal.

Section 14. Neither House shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than five days; Sundays excluded; nor to any other place than that, in which the two Houses are in session.

Section 15. (A) The general assembly shall enact no law except by bill, and no bill shall be passed without the concurrence of a majority of the members elected to each house. Bills may originate in either house, but may be altered, amended, or rejected in the other.

(B) The style of the laws of this state shall be, "be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Ohio."

(C) Every bill shall be considered by each house on three different days, unless by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to the house in which it is pending suspend this requirement, and every individual consideration of a bill or action suspending the requirement shall be recorded in the journal of the respective house. No bill may be passed until the bill has been reproduced and distributed to members of the house in which it is pending.

(D) No bill shall contain more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title. No law shall be revived or amended unless the new act contains the entire act revised, or the section or sections amended, and the section or sections amended shall be repealed.

(E) Every bill which has passed both houses of the general assembly shall be signed by the presiding officer of each house to certify that the procedural requirements for passage have been met and shall be presented forthwith to the governor for his approval.

(F) Every joint resolution which has been adopted in both houses of the general assembly shall be signed by the presiding officer of each house to certify that the procedural requirements for adoption have been met and shall forthwith be filed with the secretary of state.

SECTION 18. If the governor approves an act, he shall sign it, it becomes law, and he shall file it with the secretary of state. If he does not approve it, he shall return it with his objections in writing, to the house in which it originated, which shall enter the objections at large upon its journal, and may then reconsider the vote on its passage. If three-fifths of the members elected to the house of origin vote to repass the bill, it shall be sent, with the objections of the governor, to the other house, which may also reconsider the vote on its passage. If three-fifths of the members elected to the second house vote to repass it, to become law notwithstanding the objections of the governor, and the presiding officer of the second house shall file it with the secretary of state. In no case shall a bill be repassed by a smaller vote than is required by the constitution on its original passage. In all cases of reconsideration the vote of each house shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting for and against the bill shall be entered upon the journal.

If a bill is not returned by the governor within ten days, Sundays excepted, after being presented to him, it becomes law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly by adjournment prevents its return; in which case, it becomes law unless, within ten days after such adjournment, the governor, in writing, in the office of the secretary of state. The governor shall file with the secretary of state every bill not returned by him to the house of origin that becomes law without his signature.

The governor may disapprove any item or items in any bill making an appropriation of money and the item or items, so disapproved, shall be void, unless repassed in the manner prescribed by this section for the repassage of a bill.

Section 31. The members and officers of the General Assembly shall receive an annual salary and such allowances for reasonable and necessary expenses related to the performance of their duties as are provided by law; and no change in a member's salary shall take effect during the term for which he was elected, nor shall any change in a member's allowances take effect prior to the first of January following the next general election in an even-numbered year.

ARTICLE III

Section 1a. In the general election for governor, one vote shall be cast jointly for the candidates nominated by the members of the House of Representatives. The general assembly may provide by law for the joint nomination of candidates for governor and lieutenant governor.

Section 3. The returns of every election for the officers, named in the foregoing section, shall be sealed up and transmitted to the seat of Government, by the returning officers, directed to the President of the United States, on or before the first week of the session, shall open and publish them, and declare the result. In the presence of a majority of the members of each House of the General Assembly. The joint candidates having the highest number of votes cast for governor and lieutenant governor and the person having the highest number of votes for any other office shall be declared duly elected; if any two or more have an equal and the highest number of votes for the same office or offices, one of them or any two for who joint votes were cast for governor and lieutenant governor, shall be chosen by the joint vote of both houses.

Section 16. The Lieutenant Governor shall perform such duties in the executive department as are assigned to him by the Governor and exercise such powers as are prescribed by law.

Section 2a. The names of all candidates for an office at any general election shall be arranged in a group under the title of that office, and shall be so alternated that each name shall appear (in so far as may be reasonably possible) substantially an equal number of times at the beginning, at the end, and in each intermediate place, if any, of the group in which such name belongs. Except at a Party Primary or in a non-partisan election, a name shall be designated as a candidate's party, if any, shall be printed under or after each candidate's name in lighter and smaller typeface than the candidate's name is printed. An elector may vote for candidates for governor and lieutenant governor, and for other candidates for governor and lieutenant governor, only in one or other way than by indicating his vote for each candidate separately from the indication of his vote for any other candidate.

EFFECTIVE DATE AND REPEAL

If adopted by a majority of the electors voting on this amendment, the amendment and schedule thereto, except section 16 of Article III, shall take immediate effect, and existing sections 4, 6, 7, 9, 11, 14, 16, and 31 of Article II, existing section 3 of Article III, existing section 2a of Article V, and sections 4, 6, 7, 9, 11, 14, 16, and 31 of Article II, and section 22 of Article IV shall be repealed from such effective date.

SCHEDULE

(A) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 7 of Article II and until the second Monday of January, 1973, the presiding officer of the Senate shall continue to be designated the president pro tempore of the Senate and the president pro tempore, not the President, of the Senate may participate in the calling of a special session pursuant to section 8 of Article II.

(B) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 7 of Article II and until the second Monday of January, 1973, the Lieutenant Governor shall continue to serve as president of the Senate for purposes except to participate in the calling of a special session by presiding officers of the General Assembly pursuant to section 8 of Article II.

(Amended House Joint Resolution No. 44)
JOINT RESOLUTION
Proposing to amend sections 4, 6, 7, 9, 11, 14, 16, and 31 of Article III, sections 3 and 16 of Article III, section 22 of Article IV, to enact new sections 8 and 15 of Article II, to enact section 14 of Article III, to repeal sections 5, 8, 15, 17, 18, 19, and 25 of Article II and section 22 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of Ohio, relative to the administration, organization, and procedures of the General Assembly.

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, three-fourths of the members elected to each house concurring therein, that there shall be submitted to the electors of the state in the manner prescribed by law at a special election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, 1972, a proposal to amend sections 4, 6, 7, 9, 11, 14, 16, and 31 of Article III, sections 3 and 16 of Article III, section 22 of Article IV, to enact new sections 8 and 15 of Article II, to enact section 14 of Article III, to repeal sections 5, 8, 15, 17, 18, 19, and 25 of Article II and section 22 of Article IV of the Constitution of Ohio to read as follows:

ARTICLE II
Section 4. No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he was elected, unless during such term he resigns therefrom, hold any public office under the United States, or this state, or a political subdivision thereof; but this provision does not extend to officers of a political party, notaries public, or officers of the militia or of the United States armed forces.

No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he was elected, or for one year thereafter, be appointed to any public office under this state, which office was created or the compensation of which was increased, during the term for which he was elected.

Section 6. Each House shall be judge of the election, returns, and qualifications of its own members. A majority of all the members elected to each House shall be a quorum to do business, but a less number may adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties, as shall be prescribed by law.

Each House may punish its members for disorderly conduct, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected thereto, expel a member, but not the second time for the same cause. Each House has all powers necessary to provide for its safety and the undisturbed transaction of its business, and to obtain, through committees or otherwise, information affecting legislative action under consideration or in contemplation, or with reference to any alleged breach of its privileges or misconduct of its members, and to that end to enforce the attendance and testimony of witnesses, and the production of books and papers.

Section 7. The mode of organizing each house of the general assembly shall be prescribed by law.

Each house shall choose its own officers, including a presiding officer, to be elected from its membership, who shall be elected by the Senate as president of the Senate and in the House of Representatives as speaker of the House of Representatives.

Each house shall determine its own rules of proceeding.

Section 8. Each house shall convene in first regular session on the first Monday of January in the odd-numbered year, or on the succeeding day if the first Monday of January is a legal holiday, and in second regular session on the same date of the following year. Either the governor, or the presiding officers of the general assembly acting jointly, may convene the general assembly in special session by a proclamation which may limit the purpose of the session.

Section 9. Each house shall keep a correct journal of its proceedings, which shall be published. At the desire of any two members, the yeas and nays shall be entered upon the journal, and on the passage of every bill, in either House, the yeas shall be taken by yeas and nays, and entered upon the journal.

Section 11. A vacancy in the Senate or House of Representatives for any cause, including the failure of a member to qualify for office, shall be filled by election by the members of the Senate or the members of the House of Representatives, as the case may be, who are affiliated with the same political party as the person last elected by the electors to the seat which has become vacant. A vacancy occurring before or during the first twenty months of a Senatorial term shall be filled by election as provided in this section, for only that portion of the term which will expire on the thirty-first day of December following the next general election occurring in an even-numbered year after the vacancy occurs. If the election of the seat shall be filled by the electors as provided by law for the remaining unexpired portion of the term, the member-elect so chosen to take office on the first day in January next following such election. No person shall be elected to fill a vacancy in the Senate or House of Representatives, as the case may be, unless he meets the qualifications set forth in this Constitution and the laws of this state for the seat in which the vacancy occurs. If a vacancy shall be accomplished, notwithstanding the provisions of section 27, Article III, the Constitution, by the adoption of a resolution, while the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, is in session, the taking of the yeas and nays of the members of the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, shall be the same political party as the person last elected to the seat, in which the vacancy occurs. The adoption of such resolution shall require the affirmative vote of a majority of the members elected to the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, entitled to vote thereon. Such resolution shall be spread upon the journal of the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, for the term for which he was so elected.

Section 14. Neither House shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than five days, Sundays excepted, by any other place than that, in which the two Houses are in session.

(B) The style of the laws of this state shall be, "be enacted by the general assembly of the state of Ohio."

No bill may be passed until the bill has been reproduced and distributed to members of the house in which it is pending.

(D) No bill shall contain more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title. No law shall be revived or amended unless the new act contains the entire act revived, or the section or sections amended, and the section or sections amended shall be repealed.

(E) Every bill which has passed both houses of the general assembly shall be signed by the presiding officer of each house to certify that the procedural requirements for passage have been met and shall be presented forthwith to the governor for his approval.

(F) Every joint resolution which has been adopted in both houses of the general assembly shall be signed by the presiding officer of each house to certify that the procedural requirements for adoption have been met and shall forthwith be filed with the secretary of state.

SECTION 16. If the governor approves an act, he shall sign it, it becomes law, and he shall file it with the secretary of state.

If he does not approve it, he shall return it with his objections in writing to the house in which it originated, which shall enter the objections at large upon its journal, and may then reconsider the vote on its passage. If three-fifths of the members elected to the house of origin vote to re-pass the bill, it shall be sent to the other house, which may also reconsider the vote on its passage. If three-fifths of the members elected to the second house vote to re-pass it, it becomes law notwithstanding the objections of the governor.

If a bill is not returned by the governor within ten days, Sundays excepted, after being presented to him, it becomes law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly by adjournment prevents its return; in which case, it becomes law unless, within ten days after such adjournment, it is filed in the office of the secretary of state. The governor shall file with the secretary of state every bill not returned by him to the house of origin that becomes law without his signature.

The governor may disapprove any item or items in any bill making an appropriation of money and the item or items, so disapproved, shall be void, unless repassed in the manner prescribed by this section for the repassage of a bill.

Section 31. An elector may vote for candidates (other than candidates for electors of President and Vice-President of the United States, and other than candidates for governor and lieutenant governor) only and in no other manner than by indicating his vote for each candidate separately from the indication of his vote for any other candidate.

Turbo Train . . .

Staggers denies exerting any pressure to get the Turbo Train. "This was their decision entirely," he said in an interview. "I said nothing about the Turbo."

Amtrak's explanation is that it wanted to see if good service, modern equipment and heavy advertising could lure passengers back to one of the three most poorly patronized routes in the nation. It claims patronage has doubled over the old service.

However, the Washington-to-Parkersburg route was dropped when Amtrak took over the railroads one year ago. It was quickly reinstated, an Amtrak spokesman said at the time, "because of political pressures."

Amtrak maintains that putting the Turbo Train on the Parkersburg run was a joint decision with the Transportation Department. Spokesmen for the Federal Railroad Administration, an arm of the Transportation Department, say the idea came to them from Amtrak.

Officially, the Transportation Department says it wanted to test the train's engineering strengths over track with the most curves and highest inclines in the United States. Department sources, however, concede the Turbo Trains were not designed for such a mission.

During its first days of operation on the route, the Turbo derailed once and several times had to be boosted over the mountains with diesel engines. Officials say they changed the Turbo's fuel mix and it now can cross the mountains under its own power.

When the Turbo was taken off the Boston run, Rep. Dan Kuykendall, R-Tenn., and a member of Staggers's committee, told newsmen he had suggested to Amtrak officials "in a friendly fashion" that they ought to "fix up West Virginia."

At the time Kuykendall said his statement "had a very deep meaning and they all knew exactly what I meant."

"If I were chairman of this committee I would try to get one of these in my district," he added.

Today Kuykendall says he made the statement "almost tongue in cheek without any specific thing in mind."

Several sources say, however, that Staggers had a private meeting with Amtrak President Roger Lewis during which he demanded the Turbo be run to Parkersburg in return for committee approval of the Amtrak authorization.

"This was just a political fact of life for Amtrak," said a source inside the administration.

Lewis was not available for comment, and Staggers denied it.

Whatever the reason for the move, it is sure to cost the government a huge sum.

The government leases both Turbo Trains from United Aircraft, the manufacturer, for $41,000 a month. Even when both trains served Boston at full capacity, they operated at a deficit, though the nine round trips weekly brought in revenues totaling $109,000 a month.

With Boston service now reduced to five round trips weekly, revenues are down to $60,000 monthly, a loss of $49,000. This would be offset somewhat by revenues on the Parkersburg route, except these revenues are more than cancelled by costs of having to maintain two repair shops.

Maintenance cost the government $148,000 a month when both trains served Boston and only one repair shop was needed. No one yet knows what this expense will be with the trains serving different routes—only that it will be considerably higher.

So just figuring half the lease expense and the revenue loss, the Parkersburg Turbo costs taxpayers $69,500 a month—or $417,000 if it remains on that route for six months as Staggers has said it will.

Loss of the Turbo brought surprisingly little reaction from the New England congressional delegation.

Only Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., complained to Amtrak in writing. Richard J. Bowen, director of the New England Governor's Conference's rail passenger office, described the move as "weird" but said no one would speak out until the Amtrak bill is passed by Congress.

"We're not going to do anything to antagonize anybody," he said. "The point is you've got to keep Amtrak alive to use that one train we've got left."

A similarly cautious view was expressed by a Federal Railroad Administration official who said, "I don't see what's wrong with pleasing a few people if in the process you get a good test."

Patronage on the Parkersburg route is so poor, he said, that by fall "even Harley will not see any point in keeping it there."

Staggers's comments during an interview indicated that he may be hard to convince.

"I was instrumental in trying to get Washington opened to the West," he said. "I'm hoping for Parkersburg to be the gate west to Cincinnati. If the Turbo is proved practical across the mountains, I think we should get more all across the country."

As he said on the day when the Turbo pulled out on its first run to Parkersburg:

"West Virginia deserves as good a train as any in the nation."

Tax Repeal Leadership Incorporates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Three anti-income tax leaders filed incorporation papers with Secretary of State Ted Brown Wednesday as a nonprofit corporation called Citizens for Repeal of Ohio's Income Tax.

Reps. Richard Reichel, R-92 Massillon; Robert Netzel, R-7 Toledo, and Donald Fraser, R-97 Toledo, listed their incorporation purposes as the education of the Ohio public about the tax and its repeal.

The three legislators will serve as temporary trustees until a meeting can be called to elect permanent ones.

Anti-income tax forces are attempting to put a constitutional amendment on the ballot next November. They must collect 318,414 valid signatures on petitions to do it.

If approved by voters, the amendment would repeal the personal and corporation income tax effective Jan. 1, 1973. It also would require that future income taxes be approved by the voters.

Although the repeal movement was initiated by Republicans, the GOP state headquarters reaffirmed Wednesday it is maintaining a hands-off policy toward the issue.

Both Humphrey and Muskie fielded questions on marijuana from high school students.

Muskie said at Kimberly, he supports the recommendations of the presidential commission which called for elimination of criminal penalties for private use of marijuana.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington called for establishment of an environmental conservation corps to provide jobs, mainly for young adults.

"It was a cold rain, too," the Pontiac, Mich., housewife said as she rested in a motel here. "The gals are real troupers, although they might have wanted to strangle me," she said. "I really ran them."

Mrs. McCabe noted the grades are getting steeper as the group gets closer to the Pennsylvania border.

"Walking is becoming more difficult," she said. "I wish everything would hurry up and toughen. I've been waiting for my muscles to toughen, but it's just not happening."

"Maybe it doesn't happen to women. My little toe is just screaming."

The women, members of the National Action Group which is opposed to forced busing of school children for racial integration, planned to march into Canton today and then 13 miles down Ohio 43 to near the Stark-Carroll County line.

In other developments Wednesday, Humphrey won a lopsided victory in a straw vote at a four-state convention of COPE, the political arm of the AFL-CIO.

In the balloting at Minneapolis, Humphrey got 289 votes, Muskie 40, McGovern 35, Jackson 10 and Wallace 7.

Armed with television cameras and infrared sensing devices that can pierce the darkness, the AC130 was roaming over the Ho Chi Minh trail looking for North Vietnamese supply trucks.

At about 4 a.m., three SAMs were fired at the AC130 and its escorts about 10 miles southwest of Sepone, a key transportation point on the Ho Chi Minh trail, about 25 miles from the South Vietnamese border and an equal distance south of the demilitarized zone. One of the 37-foot long, Soviet-built missiles scored a direct hit.

The AC130, called the "Spectre," is the Air Force's biggest destroyer of North Vietnamese trucks moving supplies southward down the 250-mile long Ho Chi Minh trail.

Most of the North Vietnamese truck traffic moves at night, and the AC130 has television that allows the crew to watch the ground illuminated only by moonlight. It also carries infrared devices that can pick up the heat from truck engines.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Command reported that one American soldier was killed just before dusk Wednesday when enemy troops attacked the position of the 3rd Brigade, 1st Air Cavalry Division, 30 miles east of Saigon. Small arms and automatic weapons fire was exchanged. Enemy losses were not known.
